U.S. AGENTS SEEK OTTAWA BOMB PLOTTER

BERLIN REJECTS U. S. DEMANDS

MOHR LAWYER SCORES "OTHER WOMAN"

WIDOW IN TEARS AT PLEA OF COUNSEL

"State Would Trade Away the Liberty of Accused Woman," Declares Attorney Fitzgerald

Providence, Feb 4.—With an eloquence that moved many of his listeners to tears, and while Mrs. Elizabeth Mohr sat with her face buried in her hands, weeping, Attorney John J. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Mohr's counsel, appealed to the jury here today to acquit the woman on the charge of complicity in her husband's murder.

He pilloried "the McAndrews, the Hamms, the Ormsbys, the Books and the Burgers" who had testified against Mrs. Mohr. "They stood up before you on this witness stand," he exclaimed, "and cried out 'Crucify her! Crucify her!'"

He pictured "the Burgers and the Books" as saying, should Mrs. Mohr be convicted: "We've got you at last!"

He painted a picture of Mrs. Mohr's estate under the long ordeal and told of her children at home. He said Virginia Mohr, the little daughter, had begged him to save her mother, and as he spoke tears appeared in many eyes throughout the courtroom.

ASKS FAIR PLAY.

"All I ask is fair play, American fair play and justice," he repeated again and again. And he criticised the prosecution for insisting that the negroes and Mrs. Mohr be tried together. He said the cases were involved and complicated, and that each deserved separate consideration.

He referred to the alleged motive of jealousy of Emily Burger. "I ask you," he cried, "if when Mrs. Mohr found that Emily Burger was breaking into her life, twining herself about that man, if she was not justified in jealousy; if she was not justified in telephoning to Miss Burger to 'leave my husband alone'?"

Mrs. Mohr continued to shed tears as Fitzgerald swept on in his defence of his client and his denunciation of the prosecution and its witnesses.

In addition to his keenness as a cross-examiner, Attorney Fitzgerald has especial repute in Rhode Island as a brilliant jury pleader.

He came to the courthouse today

Points Urged by Counsel in His Plea for Widow

HERE are the more striking points brought out by Attorney John J. Fitzgerald in his address in defence of Mrs. Mohr:

1—The State says jealousy of Emily Burger was a motive. But Emily Burger had been in Dr. Mohr's life for years. If jealousy had actuated Mrs. Mohr, would she not have manifested it long ago?

2—There could never have been a bitterer moment in her life than when the doctor lovingly told her their marriage was not legal. If she had been a bitter woman with murder in her heart, that would have been the time to plot and plan.

3—They say she desired the doctor's money. But the doctor had once put his property in her name. She could have held it then. Or by securing an absolute divorce she could have won as much of his money as if she were his widow.

4—The Attorney-General tells you she feared the revelations of the divorce suit. But with all the means at his command for getting evidence, he has failed to produce one single fact that besmirches her character.

5—His Honor will tell you you cannot consider the so-called "confessions" as evidence against Mrs. Mohr.

SORROW WILL GIVE SUPPORT TO BRANDEIS

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 4.—Prospects for speedy favorable action by the Senate on the nomination of Louis D. Brandeis as associate justice of the Supreme Court increased today. It was learned that James J. Storrow, Boston banker, familiar with Mr. Brandeis' connection with the United Shoe Machinery Company, will appear before Senator Chilton's subcommittee to favor confirmation.

Mr. Storrow is now a heavy stockholder in the United Shoe Machine Company, which has figured so prominently in the sentiment for and against Mr. Brandeis. Mr. Storrow, friends of Brandeis here say, will inform the sub-committee regarding Mr. Brandeis' former connection with the firm, and will assure them that knowledge, so obtained was not used in any unethical way when he appeared later as counsel against the company.

The charge by enemies of Mr. Brandeis that he had violated legal ethics in this way has been the principal bone of contention among the five Senators named to investigate.

In addition to the testimony of Mr. Storrow, it is practically assured that Paul Warburg, a member of the Federal Reserve Board, also will appear in behalf of Mr. Brandeis.

Postmaster's House Burns.

Chatham, Feb. 4—The large house occupied by N. A. Eldridge, the postmaster, was destroyed by fire. The house was built a few years ago at a cost of $15,000.

LUSITANIA DISAVOWAL REFUSED

German Reply to U. S. Note on Point of Legality of Sinking Reported to Contain Rejection

Berlin, via Amsterdam, Feb. 4.—Germany is understood to have rejected in diplomatic terms the demand of the United States that the sinking of the Lusitania be disavowed.

It was authoritatively stated today that the German government would not admit that the destruction of the Cunarder was illegal.

The reply transmitted to the United States sets forth this position clearly, it is stated, and makes it plain that under no circumstances will Germany alter its stand.

Berlin Refusal Stirs Washington

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 4.—Administration officials were very seriously concerned over today's reports from Berlin that Germany had taken the position that she could not disavow the sinking of the Lusitania as an illegal act.

It is accepted here that this is the one point on which President Wilson will not give way. In all of the Lusitania negotiations he and Secretary Lansing have insisted that the sinking of the liner with the loss of American lives was flagrant violation of the rules of international law.

Officials believe that if the Berlin dispatches are correct then the unofficial negotiations between Secretary Lansing and Count von Bernstorff must immediately be ended and this government will be compelled to make a formal demand for a disavowal coupled with the declaration that unless it is forthcoming continuation of friendly relations will be dangerously imperilled.

Secretary Lansing positively refused to discuss the report. He stated that he had nothing to add to his statement previously made that a course of action had been agreed upon to meet certain contingencies. He also declined to confirm the report that this course contemplated a diplomatic break unless Germany admitted the illegality of the sinking of the Lusitania.

Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, said that he expected the Lusitania answer of his government to reach him late today. He said that he probably would send it to the State Department by messenger as soon as it was received and then will await a summons to a conference. He declined to accept the view that if the reply was not a complete acceptance of the President's demands a serious situation would develop. The scanty information so far received by him, the ambassador said, indicated that

160 KILLED BY COLLISION OF LINERS

By International News Service.

Shanghai, Feb. 4.—The Japanese steamer, Daijin Maru, 1,576 tons collided with the British steamer Linan, Wednesday night and sank shortly afterward with a loss of 160 lives, according to maritime officers received here today.

The Linan was badly damaged and had to put into Hong Kong.

The collision is said to have occurred about 125 miles from Hong Kong. The marine reports state that the Daijin Maru was rammed by the Linan and sank in seven minutes, the crew being unable to launch more than two lifeboats.

The Linan's bow is said to have been smashed below the waterline. Most other vessel narrowly escaped sinking. Boats put off from the British ship to pick up survivors from the Daijin Maru but only a few were found.

The Daijin Maru was built in 1909 and was registered at Osaka. The Linan is owned by the Cohen Navigation Company of London is its home port.

GOES FROM JAIL TO FACE NEW CHARGE

John Kadra, thirty of Ashland, was in Roxbury Court today on the charge of breaking and entering the home of Caroline V. Bushnell No. 108 Hemenway Street, on January 14. Kadra was brought to Roxbury from the Charles Street Jail, where he was held for an alleged robbery of Justice William C. Loring several weeks ago. Kadra was held for Grand Jury action.

SPY HUNTED FOR CANADIAN FIRE

Washington, Feb. 4.—A searching investigation to determine whether the incendiaries, suspected of setting fire to the Parliament buildings at Ottawa, Canada, last night, came from the American side of the border, was ordered today by the Department of Justice.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 4.—Fire believed by the Canadian authorities to have been set by a German agent destroyed the historic Canadian Parliament buildings early today, causing the loss of five lives and entailing a monetary loss estimated at $7,000,000.

Detectives are scouring this city and Montreal for a suspect who, it is unofficially declared, planted an incendiary bomb in the reading room near Commons chamber, where the blaze originated shortly before 9 o'clock last evening.

Following are those known to be dead:

Miss. Bray of Montreal, a guest of Miss. Sevigny, wife of the Speaker of Commons.

Miss. Morin of Beauce, also a guest of Miss. Sevigny.

Alphonse Des Jardins, a Dominion policeman.

Alphonse Des Jardin, a plumber and uncle of the preceding victims.

Robert Fleming, a waiter.

The two women were overcome by smoke and burned to death. The men were crushed by falling debris.

SEVERAL MISSING.

Several persons were still reported missing late in the forenoon. Among them were W. Winslow, an engineer, and J. B. R. Laplant, clerk of the House of Commons.

Among the injured in various hospitals were: Sergeant McDonald of the Seventy-seventh Regiment; Private Latocque and Private Collyer of the same regiment; Walter Hill, a restaurant steward, and Fireman Berry. Berry had both hands frozen.

Help was called from Montreal, but the combined efforts of the Ottawa and Montreal firemen could not stay the headway of the flames.

After Commons chamber and the Senate had been burned the firemen concentrated their efforts on saving the parliamentary library, and this was the only section of the building which escaped destruction. The firemen had a terrific fight and at 4 o'clock it looked as though the library was doomed, but the fire fighters were finally victorious. However, most of the books and valuable documents had already been carried from the library by members of the Seventy-seventh Regiment as a precautionary measure.

GIFTS OF KING BURNED.

There were many narrow escapes, as the fire spread so rapidly that some of the persons in the building were trapped and had to fight their way through blinding flames.

Minister of Agriculture Burrell was overcome as he was leading his way through the thickest of the smoke and fell unconscious, but was dragged to safety.

The Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada, rushed to the scene in an automobile and insisted on helping the firemen.

Premier Borden announced that Parliament would continue in session despite the loss of the buildings. The members were notified to be ready to assemble at 2 o'clock this afternoon at either the Russell Theatre or the government offices of the Board of Railroad Commissioners.

Among the works of value destroyed were paintings presented to

HANOTAUX SEES CRISIS NEAR IN TRENCH WAR

By GABRIEL HANOTAUX,
Former French Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Paris, Feb. 4.—The time has come again for the allies to look around and see how they stand. Three vital points in the present problem are:

What about the trench war?
What about the war of attrition?
What is the diplomatic situation?

The trench war seems stationary, but the people must not be deceived. On both sides tremendous preparations are being made for a gigantic battle, which cannot be long delayed.

The Central Empires, surrounded with an almost complete circumvallation, have only two ways of breaking through the iron ring—either by piercing it at a decisive point or by obtaining a decision on a far-off battlefield, such as Egypt or Mesopotamia. The latter solution does not offer immediate danger.

HAND-TO-HAND WARFARE.

The Teutons are daily trying to pierce the western front. It is very doubtful whether they possess the strength to carry through a huge attack successfully. Nevertheless, there is one factor in their favor: they have a tremendously powerful heavy artillery. This artillery can not only prepare a great attack, but it is daily killing allied troops.

That is how the Germans are now clubbing at our front. For this reason I think the day is not far distant when a fearful hand-to-hand battle will take place which will end trench warfare.

Our leaders are aware of this possibility. We can be certain they always have it in mind. At the last Champagne battle our people living on the Ardennes and on the Aisne witnessed preparation for a great retreat, by Germans over whom had swept the breath of frost.

A bigger and longer sustained battle will probably end a trench warfare and the war itself. For Germany lies at the mercy of one terrific, well-delivered blow.

MUST TIGHTEN BLOCKADE.

Regarding the war of attrition, we must not be deluded. Despite their undoubted sufferings, the German people are not in a collapsing condition. The militarist, agrarian and intellectual parties still hold their heads high. But the allies can aggravate the evils of food and money shortage by tightening the blockade.

WAR SUMMARY

The Germans, according to both Paris and London, are concentrating immense masses of infantry and tremendous numbers of cannon behind their lines in France. The allied air scouts appear to have detected the movement, and the reports from the allied capitals are presumably based upon the air craft reconnaissances.

Thus talk of German "drive" is revived. Conjecture as to just what goal the Germans will seek to attain occupies the London and Paris papers. Calais and Dunkirk, or Amiens, or Rheims, or Soissons, or even Verdun, may prove to be the objective.

Within a matter of six or eight weeks now the weather in France should be favorable to military operations on the largest scale. With German preparations in progress, and allied preparations also being rushed, it is probable this Summer will see desperate and bloody battling along the long trench line in France.

An incident of yesterday that has some significance was the sinking of the collier Franz Fischer by a Zeppelin. The collier was a vessel of 1,414 tons or thereabouts, and one bomb dropped by the Zeppelin damaged her so that she sank in less than three minutes. The bomb appears to have blown the vessel practically in half.

This is the first case in the war of the sinking of a steamship by an airship. Incidentally, it demonstrated the tremendous power of the new Zeppelin bombs. Such a bomb as sank the collier would undoubtedly—supposing it struck a funnel or other vital spot—have crippled or sunk a battleship.

The Germans have from the beginning counted on their Zeppelins to help them win the command of the sea from England. The sinking of the collier may prove to be a sign that the Zeppelins are reaching a potentiality that may make this possible.

The Appam case approaches a solution. The vessel has been legally adjudged a prize; her prisoners have been landed. Secretary of State Lansing will probably consult with the President before making a final decision as to what disposition shall be made of the vessel. If she is ordered to depart or surrender to her former British owners, there is some likelihood she may be sunk by the Germans.

BOMBARD GERMAN LINES

By International News Service.

Berlin, Feb. 4.—German positions along the west front are under a severe bombardment, particularly in the Argonne, the German War Office reported today.

North of Hulluch, the Germans were driven from a mine crater which they had occupied by the explosion of another mine which the British set off.

Following is the text of the official statement:

"West of Hulluch, a French fighting biplane fell undamaged in our hands. The pilot lost his way.

"Balkan front: Our airmen noticed extensive fires in the Vardar Valley, south of the Greek frontier, and also at the depots in Salonika."

Austrians in White Disguise in Snow

By International News Service.

Rome, Feb. 4.—Austro-Hungarian soldiers fighting against the Italians in the mountains of Trentino are wearing white tunics so as to be invisible against the snow. News of an attack by Austro-Hungarians thus garbed is contained in the following official statement issued by the War Office today:

"In the Lagarina valley one of our scouting detachments, supported by artillery, attacked and dispersed enemy contingents in front of Mori. In the zone between Astico valley and Covra, on the evening of the first, the enemy, dressed in white tunics and supported by machine guns, advanced against our positions along the Camporra-Millegrobe front. They were repulsed by counter-attacks.

"In the Sugana valley our infantry repulsed the enemy.

"There have been intermittent artillery actions on the Isonzo front. North of Gorizia we brought under our fire enemy troops marching along the Rusco road. In the San Martino zone, near Carso, one of our detachments attacked an entrenchment, capturing some prisoners and a number of rifles and grenades."

Bombard Albanian Cities from Air.

By International News Service.

Vienna, Feb. 4.—Avlona and Durazzo, the chief cities of Albania, were bombarded from the air by Austro-Hungarian hydroplanes on Wednesday, the War Office announced today. One of the hydroplanes that attacked Avlona was destroyed, but its two occupants were rescued by the crew of another machine.

The rescuing hydroplane reached the gulf of Cattaro in safety, having made a flight of 156 miles.

The official statement issued by the War Office follows:

"In Albania we captured the region west of Kruga (northeast of Durazzo).

"Our hydroplanes on Wednesday bombarded Durazzo and the camp near there, causing heavy damage. On the same day three Austro-Hungarian hydroplanes bombarded Avlona, hitting the harbor works, ships and camps there.

"One hydroplane was damaged and descended to the sea. Another descended, destroyed the damaged machine and then ascended with the two rescued occupants of the destroyed hydroplane. This machine alighted undamaged in the gulf of Cattaro, having covered 229 kilometers (136.4 miles)."

Austrians Report Russian Failure.

Vienna, Feb. 4.—The following report of operations on the Russian and Italian fronts was issued by the War Office today:

"A Russian raid against our advanced positions northeast of Boyn failed. On the eastern Galicia and Volhynia front there was considerable aeroplane activity on both sides.

"A Russian squadron threw six bombs on Bucsacz, killing two inhabitants and wounding several others. A Russian aeroplane was damaged and fell northeast of Luchdrel. Its occupants were taken prisoners. An Austro-Hungarian air squadron bombarded successfully the districts west of Courthov and north of Zharaz.

"Several towns on the Italian coast were bombarded by an Austro-Hungarian naval squadron."

Counsel Appeals to the Jury to Clear Mrs. Mohr of Death Plot Charge

COURT THRONGED AS CASE NEARS JURORS

ATTORNEY FITZGERALD PLEADING TO THE JURY TO GIVE MRS. MOHR HER LIBERTY—SKETCHED BY HAYDON JONES

prepared for the greatest argument so far in his professional career. The public, recognizing that Mrs. Mohr's chief counsel would put forth his most eloquent efforts today, came in record number to gain admittance.

Judge Stearns allowed persons to stand in the court today for the first time since the trial began. So the room was jammed when Mr. Fitzgerald began.

WOMEN IN THRONG.

There were many women, as usual, in the throng. Soon many of these were weeping, as Mrs. Mohr did. The atmosphere seemed to become more and more charged with feeling as the argument in behalf of the accused widow aped on and the case approached nearer and nearer the jury point.

Attorney Fitzgerald started off without any preliminaries, and inside of three minutes had Mrs. Mohr and almost everyone in the courtroom in tears. He said:

"We are nearing the end of our work. Mr. Cushing and I have felt the responsibility on our shoulders to do our part in bringing before you the facts in this case.

"I have been practicing law nearly twenty years. I have tried many cases. I have felt on my shoulders responsibility, but never in my whole career, never in all the things I have had to do, have I ever held a case that took hold of my heart-strings as this has.

"I have been wondering constantly if there was anything that I had done, anything that I had left undone, to combat the lies of the McAndrews, the Hamms, the Ormsbys, the Rooks and the Burgers.

"They stood up before you on the witness stand and cried out, 'Crucify her! Crucify her' Rooks was standing in the background urging them on with a sneer on his face.

"SAVE MY MOTHER."

"I have been wondering if the Burgers and the Rooks would finally come out triumphant, and cry out 'We've got you at last!'

"You know your responsibility, and you must know what our responsibility has been. I have gone to her home day after day and I have looked at her and wondered how the little thing stood it. I wondered day by day as they crowded her and as they sneered at her. I was wondering if they had a heart.

"I have seen her little ones, little Charlie and little Virginia, and little Virginia has thrown her arms around my neck and cried: 'Save my mother!'

"Then I have gone to my own house and looked at my own children and wondered what they would do if their mother was gone.

"Are there twelve men who can look upon this little woman there and say she should be adjudged guilty of this crime? Let us take the case of the police department—the whole force of the police. Is it a science?

"Then, investigators—some of them. Do they know how to investigate? Some are strollers and others go out to prize fights. Some of them should be more anxious to be prosecutors. They have some fine, new theories. In other words they should go out and get facts—and facts alone. And then let them prove their facts.

"Have they done so in this case? No.

"There is no question that Dr. Mohr was killed on that Barrington road that night. There is no question that George Healis was chauffeur and was there on the spot. There is no question that there were shots. But there is some question about what happened there. There is a question about the occasion, and that is the question you are called upon to answer truly.

ARRAIGNS POLICE.

"This case started at the hospital. It started with George Healis. The hardest thing the State had to overcome when they connected this little woman with the case was, why did she do it?

"Why did they do? They started on a motive and then they introduced a motive. This was followed by still another motive. And then they came in with contradictory motives. They argued the question, why should she do a thing like that?

"What did they do next? They started off with Rooks' statement at the hospital, where they accused George Healis of being the instigator of the crime. They heard Rooks' accusation and next they got Rooks' letter and they immediately started on a motive.

"Then they established a motive of jealousy on the part of Mrs. Mohr. Next they introduced the motive of revenge. Then that did not quite carry them along. What was their next move? They said her purpose was to get the doctor's money.

"This was followed by the theory that she was afraid of a pending law case. They started off on these theories and motives one by one. They tried to tell you why she should do it.

"Let us take up Motive No. 1. They came before you and said she was jealous of Emily Burger. And then they came before you and said she wished the lives of Emily Burger and Dr. Mohr.

"MIXED UP AFFAIR."

"Now what I am going to say is no reflection upon the judge presiding at this trial. I merely wish to refer to the way this woman has been treated with reference to the way she is being tried. I wish to tell you that this woman has not been permitted to try her case alone. They mixed up this case by putting the other two defendants with her in one case.

"It's a mixed up affair and it is a very difficult task to try a case such as this. But, gentlemen, you have in your hands the power to be prosecuting attorneys yourselves, and yet you can be fair about it.

"The law of our country says everybody, man or woman, black, brown or white, shall have a fair and impartial trial. It's the pride of our country. It's the boast of our liberty. It's the boast of our manhood. It's the boast of our citizenship in this land of the free—that a person shall be given a fair trial.

"The State shall provide an attorney in event the accused is unable to provide one. The State shall provide witnesses and those witnesses shall be brought to testify at the State's expense.

"You, gentlemen of the jury, who have sat here four weeks, are supposed—just think of it!—you are supposed to pass that evidence—that evidence that has been given against Spellman, Brown and this little woman —and put it under a cover. No matter how it may be mixed, you are supposed to separate that evidence.

"On the ground of fair play, in the interests of American justice, you are called upon to pass on this case. The evidence in these so-called confessions is not so much to bind the men or to prove their guilt as to bind her. This unfair, unjust, Un-American trial—that is what I consider it when we take into consideration the way it is being tried.

DISCUSSES JEALOUSY.

"Let's take the question of motive—let's take the question of jealousy. They say she was jealous of Emily Burger. How did she come to be jealous of her? How long had Emily Burger been flaunting her brazen manners? Do you remember Mrs. Emily Burger's boast that she had seen Dr. Mohr every day.

"What is the woman who gave herself to a man and who brought forth children—the mother suffering who, when she gets her first sheets of sewing the man to whom she gave herself going around and saying, 'Look over here, where is the woman who does not feel a pang of jealousy?

"Then you go on when she found out Emily Burger was breaking into her life—then she found out that Emily Burger was talking herself around the

DECLARES MOHR, FROM GRAVE, DEFENDED THE ACCUSED WIDOW

"Do you remember how the Attorney-General tried to twist her up on the witness stand and flustrate her first marriage? Do you remember you also remember how Dr. Mohr, despite his brutal treatment when alive, came back from the grave and through a letter told you that she always loved you and you alone, Mr. Mohr?

"Can you imagine a more bitter torment in her life than the time when, after she had been married to the doctor, she was told to get out and told that she was never legally married? If she had been a woman with murder in her heart they would have been the time to plot and plan.

"What did she do? She went home to her mother—the way you do in the way I do when the burden of life becomes too many to stand. She went home to Taunton with her head bowed down in shame. But after that he married her again and then he beat her when she was about to bear another child. He beat her so brutally that she lost the child and almost lost her own life.

"Then when she was driven out of the Newport home before the McAndrews and the Duffys that was also to a bitter pill. That would have been the time for murder, but did she plan or plot? No, she worked for a reconciliation.

"We have not gone into Dr. Mohr's business. We are not here to create scandal or gossip. You are all over seven, and you know that he was always on the edge of a precipice. He placed his money and his property in the name of the little woman he trusted. He expected at any minute that the long arm of the law would reach out and get him. But he wanted his wife and his children to be well taken care of.

man—she was not justified in telephoning to Miss Burger 'Leave my husband alone.'

"She telephoned to Miss Burger to leave her husband alone, and Miss Burger told Dr. Mohr what his wife said over the phone. And when the husband came home he beat her—he knocked her down. I ask you, gentlemen, if at that time would not her resentment have been the strongest?

"Crushed again she was beaten by her husband because of Emily Burger, and yet they say that Mrs. Mohr wanted revenge. Revenge for what? Revenge on whom? Revenge on Emily Burger? Revenge on Dr. Mohr?

"Do you remember how the Attorney-General tried to twist her up on the witness stand and flustrate her first marriage? Do you remember you also remember how Dr. Mohr, despite his brutal treatment when alive, came back from the grave and through a letter told you that she always loved you and you alone, Mr. Mohr?

"We have not gone into Dr. Mohr's business. We are not here to create scandal or gossip. You are all over seven, and you know that he was always on the edge of a precipice. He placed his money and his property in the name of the little woman he trusted. He expected at any minute that the long arm of the law would reach out and get him. But he wanted his wife and his children to be well taken care of.

"She could have walked out with his money, and he could never have gotten it back. Was she money mad? No; she wanted him. She accepted the $100 a month from a man when she was making $52,000 a year. I ask you to think this over.

"DIVORCE WAS EASY."

"No judge or court in the land would have awarded such a sum, but she was agreeable to take $100 a month from a man making over $1,000 a week.

"Brown is quoted as saying that she wanted his money. But, mark you, she could have got it the same thing through an absolute divorce as she could have received through being a widow. You have heard only part of the testimony that tells of Dr. Mohr's relations with other women. But even from that you must know that this woman could have secured a divorce with very little effort.

"You have heard the story of Healis, the carefully rehearsed witness who said that Mrs. Mohr said: 'It must be done tonight because my divorce case comes up tomorrow.' But we have put the clerk of the court, Robert Root, on the witness stand and he has shown you from the records of this court that the case was not scheduled for the first of January, or even for the month of January. It had been pending for two years and it could not possibly have come up for a couple of months, no matter how hard it was pressed.

"NOTHING TO FEAR."

"The Attorney-General tells you that she feared the revelations of this divorce suit. What did she have to fear? With all the means at her command for getting evidence the Attorney-General's department has scoured the world and failed to produce one single fact that besmirches her character.

"They have traced her life from her first year in Belfast, Ireland, to Norwich, Ct., to Taunton, Mass., to Providence, to Boston, to New York, and they have gone to Nova Scotia. And what have they produced? Nothing but dirty insinuations and base innuendoes.

"The Attorney-General has produced a letter that C. Franklin Mohr wrote to in which he said that this little woman was 'a good woman at present.' The Attorney-General has played on the words 'at present' until you must be sick and tired of them.

"What C. Franklin Mohr was this? He was the same man who wrote to his own brother in the latter part of June, 1915, and told him that his wife was no good, never would be any good, and claimed his children were not his own.

"But he is not the C. Franklin Mohr who insured his life for $10,000 in favor of his son. He is not the man who opened a bank account in the Old Home Bank in favor of little Charlie Mohr. He is not the man who bought little Charlie a $30 set of electric trains on his last Christmas on earth. He is not the man who bought his little girl a doll house and who fondled his children and took them to the Cathedral to be baptized, and took them out automobile riding and worshipped them.

"No! The man who wrote those letters that the Attorney-General so proudly produced was the alcoholic and morphine victim who so brutally beat his wife when she was about to bear him another child.

"MOTIVE CRUMBLES."

"So it stands to reason, gentlemen, that if the Attorney-General in his search around the world has been unable to produce one single bit of evidence that this woman fears to have made public, what could she fear from Dr. C. Franklin Mohr in his divorce trial?

"That is one of the alleged motives that the State claims made her kill her husband. So, like the others, it crumbles to earth.

"Another wonderful thing that the Attorney-General did was to produce the confessions, so called, of the three negroes. No court in the world will allow these confessions to be used against Mrs. Mohr.

His Honor will tell you when the time comes that you cannot use these confessions against this woman. But the Attorney-General managed to smear them all over the records, and if he couldn't get them in one way, he saw to it that he would get them in another way.

CHARGES A "TRADE."

"Another thing that the prosecuting attorney did that I sincerely trust and hope will never be done again in the history of Rhode Island. He got George Healis, the trusted chauffeur of Dr. Mohr, the man who admitted that he drew up his car in a dark spot so that his employer could be shot to death—they got him and they said to him: 'George, we have you for murder. We can send you up for life. We can give you years and give it to you good. But, George, we don't want you. We want the woman. We are perfectly willing to trade your life for hers. We'll let you plead to manslaughter, but we'll suspend your sentence until after you testify. If you are a good little boy and deliver the goods, we'll see that you go light.'

"Oh, what a trade! Oh, what a deed! Oh, what a thing for a man to put across. Trading the life of George W. Healis for the life of Elizabeth Frances Mohr. Are you going to be a party to that trade, gentlemen?

"Healis told you on the witness stand that he and Brown went into Mrs. Mohr's house on August 20. But the State does not bring forward one soul that saw either man enter Mrs. Mohr's house that night.

"Healis tells you that on the night of August 20 he didn't know anything about a plot. He says he went in with Brown and Mrs. Mohr said, 'Where are you going to do it?' and Brown said 'On the Providence side.' And Mrs. Mohr said 'Where are you going to throw the revolvers?' To which Brown replied 'In the lake.'

"Mind you, gentlemen, Healis doesn't know what is being said. He is the innocent lamb. He hears the conversation, but he is not a party of it.

"Then he tells you that they again visited Mrs. Mohr on the night of the 21st. Why did he tell you that? Because, he says, that the murder was to be planned that night and that Brown was to kill Dr. Mohr and that Spellman was to kill Miss Burger and that he was to stop the car. Lies, gentlemen, lies! And because they are lies he has deliberately opened himself up to the world.

"Martha Wilson was in the Elmwood avenue house that night, and Marina Wilson and Florence Ormsby were going down to Newport. Emily Burger was at Newport. Healis knew it because he had just come up from Newport.

"If that was the situation, gentlemen, how could they carry out their plot and kill Miss Burger that night? Did Healis say anything about telling Mrs. Mohr that Miss Burger was not going down in the car? No, there was no such conversation ever held about a death plot. He invented the story after the murder was over.

"The State says that Brown and Spellman threw their revolvers into Echo Lake. They say this through Healis. What does Healis know about it? He was only supposed to stop the car. He didn't have to dispose of any revolver.

"But does it stand to reason, gentlemen, that two men bent on murder would deliberately throw their weapons away immediately after they committed the crime. Their whole thought would be to make a getaway. They would retain their revolvers to shoot down any one that tried to stop them.

"And another ridiculous thing Brown, $2,000; Healis, $2,000; Spellman, $1,000. Brown to kill Dr. Mohr, $2,000; Spellman to kill Miss Burger, $1,000, and Healis to just stop the car and do nothing, $2,000. That is ridiculous, gentlemen, is ridiculous. No man or men would ever agree to a distribution as ridiculous as that. It is a story of Healis, concocted by him to save his own life—a story accepted and exploited by certain officials of the State who wanted to drag a woman into it so that it would be a big case.

RAILROAD ATTEMPT.

"If Brown and Spellman and Healis were on trial, you wouldn't see that battery from the Attorney General's office; you wouldn't see that collection from police headquarters; you wouldn't see that crowd of newspaper men from New York and Boston and other big cities. No, it was not the State either so enlisted a woman.

MRS. FUTRELLE DESCRIBES FIGHT TO FREE MRS. MOHR

By MRS. JACQUES FUTRELLE.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 4.

Solemnly, impressively there fell from the lips of Attorney Lewis the first argument in the Mohr trial. Rather suddenly we seem now to be approaching the end of, perhaps, the most talked of trial that has ever taken place in New England.

The words Attorney Lewis uttered were framed without any attempt at brilliant syntax and dazzling periods. They were at times as simple that, robbed of the expression given them by his wonderful voice and set down in cold type, they may lose their magnificence.

So, I suggest to you that you imagine the man, big, powerful, sincere, with a voice deep, resonant, and at times sorrowful, and perhaps his words may sound to you when you read them as they sounded to me in the courtroom.

He talked for a little more than two hours, and when he finished there were few dry eyes in the courtroom. Those who did not shed tears sat awed at the beauty of the sentiment he expressed on behalf of his client, Cecil Victor Brown, his plea for the prisoner at the bar.

MRS. MOHR WEPT.

Mrs. Mohr sat quite, quite still, as she always does; the tears streaming down her face. The jury cast down their eyes. Those men among the twelve who have settled a great many times at little incidents during the progress of the trial, did not smile during his talk. Three of the jurors shaded their eyes with their hands, two kept their fingers pressed against their lips. All of them, without exception, looked most solemn.

In front of me sat an ex-Governor, who frankly brushed away his tears, nearby a stanch member of the State Legislature did the same. Another lawyer, a well known doctor found it necessary to dry their eyes. Women were softly crying, as women do when their hearts are touched and the rythmical sentences flowing from the lips of Attorney Lewis stirred sympathy in a human breast.

There was little rapping for order by the deputies, there was no need of it. Everyone there in the crowded courtroom was stilled by the eloquence of this man who must be recognized as the big personality in this trial. Even the rumbling of paper among the newspaper writers ceased, and breathlessly they, women, judge and jury, listened.

POINTED OUT NEW WAY.

Briefly at times, at other times exhaustively, Attorney Lewis reviewed the case as it has been presented. And, just as if for the first time, a curtain had been rolled back upon important incidents, he pointed a new way in this maze of events. Clearly he piloted his hearers along that new way, occasionally riddling the contentions of the prosecution with rare good sense.

He proved the worth of circumstantial evidence by citing several instances wherein an innocent man had gone to his death for that crime which he had never committed; he brought to our attention the origin of the old Venetian custom of a crier going through the Venetian courts of justice to exhort the guilty not to let the innocent suffer.

Facts he dragged to the light so that we might see more than one side, motives he dissected. The open mind, robbed of prejudice and fickle of the gossip that has been such an element in this trial, needs must have received impressions from Attorney Lewis that will never be defaced; that needs must be put into the melting pot of opinions for the ultimate good of the three persons accused of the murder of Dr. Mohr.

ACCUSES HEALIS.

Gently dealt with were those persons who had given evidence against the accused and I think this was, perhaps, the most impressive thing in all his impressive argument. Only once did he indulge in denunciation and this was done sorrowfully, indignantly, without suggestion of malice.

At last, plainly, flatly, without any attempt at innendo, Attorney Lewis accused Healis of being the real murderer of Dr. Mohr. He pointed out how the police, with a correspondent in their possession, sent to one George Rooks by Mrs. Mohr nearly two years before the murder and George Rooks' 'blasphemous' accusation of Healis at the Rhode Island Hospital the night of the murder, had been the fundamental principle upon which the State based its theory of the crime.

Step by step he followed this theory until he had exhausted it. George Rooks, its instigator, he did not mention.

And then fell from the lips of the lawyer, a noble representative of his race, the justification of that race. In my mind we needs go back to the day Healis was on the stand and the answers he made to the questions put to him by Attorney Lewis in cross-examination.

WHAT HEALIS SAID.

"Mr. Healis, you were in the employ of Dr. Mohr for about three months, were you not?"

"Yes."

"He hired you because you were a safe and careful driver, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"You had in your keeping his safety even when in ordinary accident, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"He was good and kind to you?"

"Yes."

"He paid you regularly, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"He had paid you that afternoon, August 31, hadn't he?"

"Yes."

"And yet the night of August 31, you took him and his companion down on the Nayatt road, stopped your car, and held them there so that one of them might be shot to death and the other wounded for life, did you do that, Mr. Healis?"

"Yes."

"Are you an Indian, Mr. Healis?"

"Part Indian, yes."

"We'll let it rest there."

PRESENTED MANY FACTS.

But in his argument Attorney Lewis did not let it rest there.

He pictured in contrast to those of his own race who slay sometimes in the heat of passion, the treachery of the red man, who in the early days of this New England, sneaked to the homes of unprotected women and children and slew them in the dark while their protectors were away, searching for food

He stripped the soul of Healis down to the nakedness of his treacherous predecessors. We are to take it, or leave it, just as we see fit.

He closed his argument as solemnly as he had spoken when he began it.

I sat with Mrs. Mohr within the enclosure during the ten minutes' recess afterward.

"I'm ashamed to cry," she said, "here before everyone. I try to be brave, but Attorney Lewis made such a beautiful, solemn appeal that I could not help it."

I called her attention to those strong men about us who had shed tears, whose eyes were still wet; an ex-Governor, a staunch member of the State Legislature, prominent lawyers, doctors.

"I think I am tired," she said. "I want to go away somewhere and rest."

"And I shall do that when I am free, so I know," she went on; "take my children somewhere—I don't know where, and rest."

It is the first time I have heard from her lips the slightest expression of a fear that her accuse has been the most amazing of all the amazing things in this trial; her patience and fortitude something at which to marvel.

She is glad to know that the case will so soon be in the hands of the jury. She is confident of acquittal.

But whatever the verdict that will soon be read to her, she will ever remember the plea made for her liberty, as well as that of his client, Victor Brown, by the brilliant Attorney Lewis.

Spy Is Blamed for Canadian Parliament House Blaze

Parliament by Queen Victoria and Edward VII.

General Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia for Canada, assisted in the direction of the 50th Gordon Highlanders, the 48th, Seventy-seventh Regiment, which is in training here, and the 236th, all of which were called hither by the fire. Many of the officers, stopped persons in the building, carrying out books and documents and otherwise assisting in other ways.

In the meantime the Minister of Militia ordered the military authorities all along the border to watch for persons trying to leave the country surreptitiously.

A number of newspaper correspondents were also in the press gallery by the breath of the flames and saved themselves by climbing down the Athenian ladders when the firemen reached the windows.

Conflicting stories were circulated as to the fate of Chief Liberal Whip Pardee, who was in the seat in Quebec next to Premier Borden. Pardee is said to have been overcome by smoke and carried into the chamber shouting, "Fire, fire, this time it is real fire."

Mr. Pardee, like many others in the chamber, did not recognize the full extent of the fire, and was slow in attempting to make his escape. Many of the members of the House of Commons ladders when the firemen reached the windows.

Conflicting stories were circulated as to the fate of Chief Liberal Whip Pardee, who was in the seat in Quebec next to Premier Borden. Pardee is said to have been overcome by smoke and carried into the chamber shouting, "Fire, fire, this time it is real fire."

Mr. Pardee, like many others in the chamber, did not recognize the full extent of the fire, and was slow in attempting to make his escape. Many of the members of the House of Commons, including Premier Borden, were rescued by volunteers who was injured. He was badly burned about the face and hands.

That the fire followed an explosion is practically certain. Colonel George Brodhurst, a member of Parliament from Manitoba, Medric Martin, the Mayor of Montreal, and Constable Heiner, all of whom were standing near the door of the reading room, declare that there was a loud detonation a moment before smoke and flames began pouring through the reading room doors.

However, there was no stranger to enter or leave the room and were unable to furnish the government police with any clews.

That the flames spread so quickly and ate their way so thoroughly was a big surprise to Canadian officials for the building was constructed of stone and was made as nearly fireproof as possible.

The great numbers of papers, books, desks and chairs in the reading room made ready fuel for the blaze at the outbreak and it quickly spread into Commons chamber. By 1:30 o'clock the great impending tower had been undermined and it fell with a furious crash. Flames and sparks leaped high into the air lighting up the city for miles. The Senate by this time was a seething cauldron and the fire was eating its way along the corridors and snapping at the partitions of the library.

DEATH LIST UNCERTAIN.

It was said by General Sir Sam Hughes that it would be impossible to issue an official list of the dead until after the ruins cooled.

Mme. Sevigny, wife of the Speaker, is under the doctor's care as a result of the harrowing experience through which she passed. She and a party of guests were in the Speaker's suite when the fire broke out. The ordeal of struggling fugitives and the smoke which rolled through the corridors in choking billows made it impossible for them to escape except through the windows.

Firemen below seeing frightened faces at the windows above them kept shouting, "Don't jump till the fire nets are rigged up."

As quickly as possible the nets were spread and the women started to leap into them.

Mme. Sevigny picked up one of her children and dropped it from the window. It landed in the net unhurt. Then she dropped her second child and it too was safe. Then Mme. Sevigny followed, jumping feet first into the net. So great was the shock which she had suffered that she was on the verge of collapse and could not arise.

MEMBERS IN PANIC.

The other guest of Mme. Sevigny saved herself in the same way.

Excited members of the Senate and Commons fought and struggled toward the exits amidst the panic of smoke which grew denser and denser. The fugitives rolled toward the doorways and windows, hindering the firefighters from the outside.

The fire afforded the most exciting spectacle that Ottawa has been treated to for generations. As the fire gained headway and the flames rolled upward, casting a lurid glow over the snow-covered city, the whole populace surged toward the scene of the conflagration, and it was all the police and soldiers could do to hold the excited men and women at bay so that the firemen could have free play.

For a time it was feared that the flames would spread to other government buildings, and squads of firemen were held in readiness to attack any fire which might break out elsewhere. The expedient of bringing dynamite to the scene was even considered.

BURST LIKE DELUGE.

The House was in session. The progress of the fire was terrifying. It burst upon the great halls like a deluge.

M. Sevigny was in the speaker's chair.

W. S. Loggie of New Brunswick was discussing the improvement of the Dominion fish trade. The House was silent save for his voice.

Frank Glass, member for Middlesex, came into the chamber on a dead run. He staggered against the ceiling in the rear.

"Run for your lives," he said. "The buildings are on fire." Then he staggered out.

Almost immediately a wall of smoke—heavy, black and choking—rolled into the hall. It rolled forward slowly like the billowing of the ocean on a calm day. But the members who sought to follow it were staggered. Some ran to the lockers for their coats. Others fled coatless and hatless.

For a moment there was a terrible panic. Mr. Glass beat the smoke to the doors of the hall by a second only. Mr. Sevigny and the sergeant-at-arms rushed to the exits where the members of the Parliament press gallery were escaping.

TRAMPLED UNDER FOOT.

Then, on the floor of the Chamber, the wildest scene in the history of Parliament began. With a rush the members tried to force their way from the doors, only to be driven back by a sheet of flame. Back across the great smoke filled chamber swayed the now half-crazed men. On the other side were the windows, and from these they poured, reckless of life or limb if only they could clear the fire-swept building.

Some, losing their way in the darkness, pierced only by the flashes of flame, are believed to have perished. Survivors tell of others who, overcome by the smoke, fell, and were trampled under foot by their fleeing brethren.

But, while the scene on the floor of the House was awful, it could not compare with that taking place in the crowded galleries, where the majority were women spectators.

CALL AMBULANCES.

Men and women fought to win their way to the exits, there to be met by fits which drove them frantically back toward the windows. Many leaped, and of these a large part have been removed to the hospitals, severely injured.

The confusion here was increased by the scores of attendants and employes of the building, who came scrambling through the smoke into the fire-crazed crush in the Chamber.

Meanwhile, outside, every piece of fire apparatus in the city had been summoned in an attempt to save the structure, while both the city and Dominion police worked heroically in an attempt to save those cut off by the flames and to care for the injured. Every police and hospital ambulance was called to duty in caring for those who had leaped to the ground.

Within a few minutes after the fire began corridors were filled with smoke, and at many points the flames barred progress. There were many doors to the great building, but since the outbreak of the war all except the main portals have been closed to safeguard the Legislature. This precaution made escape more difficult and probably was responsible for the death of two women.

The smoke arose to the ceiling and filled the galleries. Scenes were but few visitors in the public galleries. But a half dozen soldiers occupied the front boxes. The smoke overwhelmed them and hid them from view. Three of them fell as though shot. Their fellows converted their handkerchiefs into respirators and dragged them down the narrow stairs into the open air.

The soldiers, a few volunteers, crept back to the galleries. But the smoke was as heavy as a blanket. A lantern was of no service. The electric lights could hardly be seen. The rescuers groped over the gallery floor, but they came rolling out into the air strangling and alone.

So heavy was the smoke that the flames were hidden for many minutes. When, finally, a section of the great gothic roof fell and the smoke found escape, the fire—crimson and roaring—rolled along the walls and up the huge columns and staircases.

Sir Robert Borden took charge of the fire fighters. But he could do nothing that another man might not have done. So fierce was the heat that the firemen were driven back half blinded.

BIG EXPLOSION.

A half hour after Mr. Glass discovered the flames, the west side of the huge building was shaken apart by a terrific explosion. The long, tented roof arose like paper. And it crumpled like paper.

From the roofless wing a solid column of fire—it seemed twenty feet in diameter—shot up volcano-like. It rose a hundred feet.

It was deep crimson. And with it arose the same dreadful galling smoke that cut the throat and lungs like acid.

Suspicion is general that the fire is the work of incendiaries. Naturally, Germans are suspected. There has been fear for weeks that this would happen. But a triple guard has been maintained. Only the main doors have been open. How the conspirators could have entered the place and how they set off the blazes is yet a mystery.

The hour was most favorable. A fair crowd had entered the buildings. Each had the proper passes and credentials. But the great corridors af-

Warning Given of Plot Against Government Seat

Providence, Feb. 4.

THE Providence Journal prefaces its story of the Ottawa Parliament building fire today with the following statement:

The Providence Journal three weeks ago notified the Department of Justice that it had received information directly through employes of the German embassy that the Parliament House of Ottawa, Rideau Hall, the home of the Governor-General of Ottawa, and large munition plants in Ontario were to be the next objects of German attack on this continent, in the order named.

The Journal, furthermore, notified the Department of Justice at the same time that the German Embassy had given instructions that the work of destruction in American munitions plants should be temporarily suspended and that the next move to be made would be to give the people of Canada a few things to think about."

The statement was also made by emissary officials that the arrest of Paul Koenig and the prevention of the destruction of the Welland Canal would only stimulate these activities in Canada.

This information, given by the Journal to the government, was conveyed to the Journal through a channel government officers at once declared, when inquired of the source, had to their knowledge been in constant touch with members of the German embassy for many months past.

THE ONE TO HELP WAS PLANT JUICE

Boston Man Relates How He Tried Various Remedies Without Any Benefit.

Stomach trouble is the direct cause of most derangements of the nervous system and general health. Dyspepsia and indigestion are the most frequent ailments. No other remedy has been accorded the instant success that Tape's Diapepsin has obtained by Plant

JOHN J. KELLEY

Juice, a vegetable combination of Nature's remedies for the bowels, stomach, liver and kidneys, which is being advertised at the introduction of this remedy in Boston, and numbers of signed testimonials are being received daily, telling of the great benefit which have been derived from the use of this wonderful preparation.

Following is the signed testimonial of Mr. John J. Kelley, who resides at No. 41 Snow Street, and is employed by the Boston Street Railway Company as motorman. He says:

"For the past three years I have suffered with catarrh of the head and stomach, indigestion and dyspepsia. My food would come up in my stomach and form gas and I could not keep any solid food in my stomach at all. I was so nervous and restless I could not sleep at night and would get up in the morning just as tired as if I had never gone to bed at all. I had an operation on my head which gave me no benefit, and tried all kinds of medicines in hope of finding relief, but the only medicine which relieved me was Plant Juice, and after taking several bottles I now feel like a new man. All the dreadful trouble I had with my stomach is gone, I sleep well, eat anything kind of food and it agrees with me. I only wish I had known of Plant Juice sooner, as it would have saved me hundreds of dollars."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Drug Store, corner of Washington and Winter Streets, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

ford many lurking places and dark recesses where one may hide.

Almost all the members were in the House or in their chambers—Sir Border, Sir Thomas White, Sir George Foster, Messrs. Hazen, Rogers, Crothers and the others.

Mr. Sevigny did not leave at the first alarm. He rushed back through the banks of dark smoke calling for Madame Sevigny—his wife. Somehow he found her. She was in one of the galleries.

Dr. Clark of Red Deer, one of the last to escape the Commons chamber was burned. He declares that he left at least three members behind.

When Mrs. Sevigny recovered sufficiently to speak she said that two of her women friends—Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Barry—were still in the gallery. By that time the Commons halls were clothed in solid flame. No man could have entered.

Minister of Agriculture Burrell was overcome as he made his way through the thickest of the smoke and fell just in front of the postoffice. He was picked up by Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works; J. G. Reid, Minister of Customs, and Pierre Blondin, Secretary of State. It was found that while his injuries were serious, he will recover.

Mr. Borrell had been working in his private office adjoining the reading room when the fire started. When he left his room he had to plunge through a wall of flames in the corridor and then gropе his way along the walls of the building to gain safety.

FORCES FIRE BRIGADE.

One of the first men to make his way out of the chamber was Colonel John Currie, who commanded the Fourteenth Regiment of the Canadian first division through the battle of St. Julien, where he was overcome with asphyxiating gas.

Colonel Currie at once organized into a fire brigade members of the House, telegraph operators and police attendants, who had several lines of hose from a supply kept coiled in the corridors for emergency purposes. They kept streams of water playing on the flames, but without apparent effect and soon were driven back by the terrific heat.

Standing at the entrance of the reading room when the fire started were Colonel George Bradbury, a member for Manitoba, and Medric Martin, Mayor of Montreal, a member from that city. Near them was Constable Hodgson, who was on guard at the entrance to the reading room.

All three assert that the first sound from an explosion which filled the reading room with flames and burst open the swinging doors. The force of the explosion was so great that all of them were thrown flat on the floor. In their opinion an explosive bomb or an infernal machine was responsible for the fire.

The flames from the burning building were seen two miles away at Rideau Hall, the residence of the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada. The Duke summoned his household aides, all of whom are wounded officers invalided from the front, and they motored swiftly into the city, but were unable to give any assistance.

"I was on my way from the chamber to my room, which is near the library," said Mayor Martin of Montreal, in describing his experiences in the fire. "And just as I came through the door on the east side of the House of Commons chamber when I heard an explosion.

"Whether it was caused by spontaneous combustion or a sudden fire among the newspapers, I cannot say, but instantly flames shot out from the reading room. My first thought was of the fire extinguisher, which was nearby, but policemen were then endeavoring to press it into service and I turned, running into the chamber.

"Deputy Speaker Rhodes was in the chair and everything then was quiet, but quiet until I dashed through the door and shouted 'Fire—and a big one!'

"I turned toward my room again, but by that time the corridor was filled with smoke and flames were beginning to shoot toward the chamber. I then cried for the members to get out, and ran through my room 16, giving the alarm there and escaping into the open air.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache; or, if your meals sour and turn into gas and acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

Tomorrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to sick headaches, backache, bilious attacks, constipation or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning inside bath. It is said that men and women who try this become enthusiastic and keep it up daily. It is a splendid health measure, for it is more important to keep clean and pure on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing disease, while the bowel pores do.

The principle of bathing inside is not new, as millions of people practice it. Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.—Advertisement.

6 WOMEN DEAD IN BROOKLYN FIRE

New York, Feb. 4.—Six women were burned to death early today when fire destroyed the four-story house at No. 245 Hancock street, one of the most fashionable sections of Brooklyn.

The house was the home of Mrs. Casimir Tag, widow of Casimir Tag, who was president of the German Savings and German-American Bank of Brooklyn. It was one of the handsomest houses in the city.

The fire, which broke out about 3 o'clock, was discovered by Miss Caroline Tag, who called up her brother, Dr. C. H. Tag, and then the fire department. It is believed that she then tried to arouse others in the house. It was the last seen of her. She was to have been married February 18.

When policemen fought their way into the house they found Mrs. Tag on the third floor, and carried her out unconscious. Then the flames became so fierce that the policemen were forced to leave the burning house.

After a hard fight the firemen got the blaze under control. A search of the house revealed the bodies of the six women, all of whom were in bedrooms on the second and third floors. One of these was Miss Steadman, a nurse, who had been in the Tag home only a few days.

The fire was thought to have been caused by defective insulation.

6 Dead in Fire at Atlantic City

By International News Service.

Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 4.—Six persons, two women and four men, were killed today by a fire which destroyed the Overbrook Hotel and several other buildings here. The loss was $200,000.

For several hours it was feared that many guests of the hotel, who were missing, had perished, but all were finally accounted for.

Thirty persons were injured, many of them seriously.

That the death list was not much larger was due to the fact that Miss Stokes, twenty-two years old, telephone operator, who saw the fire from her office across the street from the Overbrook Hotel and flashed the alarm to every fire station in the city. The firemen, however, had to confine their efforts to saving lives and preventing a spread of the flames.

In a heavy gale twenty frame cottages in the vicinity of the hotel caught fire and two were destroyed. The Episcopal Church of the Ascension, worshipping place of the Summer guests, was also destroyed.

Fire Drives Out Sixteen in Malden

Sixteen members of one family were driven into the snow by an early morning fire today in the home of John Healey, No. 519 Pleasant street, Malden.

The seven daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Healey, who were asleep on the second floor, had to be carried down ladders by firemen. Two of Mrs. Healey's grandchildren were carried out of the house by Mrs. James Nagle, their mother.

Three sons, asleep on the third floor, escaped by a rear balcony. The fire started in the kitchen near the stove. The cause is unknown. Damage was estimated at $5,000.

Fire Destroys Rockland House

The Rockland House at Nantasket Beach was destroyed by fire early today, and several nearby cottages were saved only after a hard battle, by the combined efforts of firemen from the Hull, Weymouth and Hingham departments.

The fire started in the kitchen in the rear, and quickly spread to the main building. Within a few moments after its discovery the entire building was a mass of flames.

Only one person was in the building at the time, the caretaker. He escaped without trouble. He was unable to account for the fire.

The hotel, which contained about 200 rooms, is owned by Patrick Bowen & Company of Boston.

U. S. DEMAND ON LUSITANIA IS REJECTED

his government had made material concessions to American public opinion and these concessions were such that he believed that a common ground of understanding could be reached.

The German embassy was building high hopes on the result of the conference with Secretary Colonel E. M. House and the officials of the German Foreign Office. It was believed that explanations made to the President's special envoy would be reflected in his view when he met the President when he considered the German reply.

The State Department refused point blank to discuss Colonel House's advices or to indicate whether they could be expected to relieve the situation.

Wilson Returning, Studies Messages

By BARRY FARIS.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 4.—As he sped back to Washington to resume his place at the government helm, President Wilson studied important messages which he had received from Secretary of State Lansing.

It was believed that among the messages was one relating to the Lusitania, but the President refused to permit any announcement of the contents of the dispatches to be made public. President Wilson is said to have shown deep concern over one message and to have sat in deep thought for some time after he had read it.

It was regarded as probable that he would confer with Secretary Lansing immediately after reaching Washington, but no Cabinet meeting will be held today. The President slept late this morning, enjoying the first real rest he has had in many days. He was threatened with a cold last night, but when he awoke today the symptoms had disappeared.

Appam Passengers on Way to New York

By International News Service.

S. S. Jefferson, at Sea, by Wireless, via Norfolk, Va., Feb. 4.—The Old Dominion liner Jefferson is speeding up the coast today in an effort to reach New York tonight and land 227 passengers and officers of British ships sunk by the mysterious German commerce raider off the African coast, who were taken across the Atlantic on the liner Appam.

In the first cabin of the Jefferson are 129 passengers, including Sir Edward and Lady Merewether. Sir Edward, who is the English Governor of Sierra Leone, declined an invitation to visit the British Ambassador at Washington, because he is anxious to reach London at the earliest possible moment.

At the British capital Sir Edward will confer with Arthur J. Balfour, First Lord of the Admiralty, and urge that Great Britain establish a firm blockade of Germany. The British official firmly believes that the raider which captured the Appam escaped from Kiel.

Englishmen Held Aboard Raider.

By E. R. SARTWELL.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Newport News, Va., Feb. 4.—That part of the Appam's passengers were taken off the liner by the German raider which captured her and made prisoners of war at sea was learned here today.

It was said that between thirty and forty men were carried from the Appam by the commander of the German raider on the ground they were members of British military forces and might at some future time bear arms against Germany. Among them was Captain G. Seconde of the British army.

In addition to the men taken from the Appam the raider is said to have on board about twenty Englishmen taken from other prizes.

The Elder Dempster liner is now in the sole possession of Lieutenant Berge's German prize crew, while the Federal authorities continue their efforts to establish the official status of the ship and to arrange for a final disposition of the Germans on board.

It is believed that the State Department will decide to hold the Appam temporarily and intern her German crew along with the seamen of the Kron Prinz Wilhelm and Eitel Friedrich at Norfolk Navy Yard.

Lieutenant Berge, who went ashore last night for a conference with Marshall Von Schilling, the German consul, was in a jitney bus accident and was not able to get back to his ship until this morning.

Must Settle the Status of Appam.

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 4.—The German prize ship Appam cannot be held in an American port indefinitely without her status being definitely determined, Secretary Lansing made this plain today and said that he would do his best to reach a decision on the matter very soon.

The department is not willing to intern the liner as a prize, or to assume responsibility for her act ashore and intern the crew as belligerents.

A new legal precedent must be established and the Secretary admitted that he was unable to decide, with the evidence at his disposition, whether the provisions of The Hague agreement or the Prussian treaty should be applied. He does not believe, however, that a prize can be requestered in neutral waters and the belief was growing that Germany would be asked to take the steamer to sea. Such a request, officials admit, will mean that the Appam would be taken out between the Virginia Capes and sunk.

DENIES RAISING DEMANDS IN SWIG CASE

When the hearing on the charges against Representative Simon Swig of Ward 21, of having violated the Corrupt Practices Act was resumed in Superior Court today, Aaron Prussian denied that he declared after election that "it would be all right" if Swig had paid $200, but that "he now wanted $1,000."

Prussian, who testified that he solicited $740 for Swig, and that he was paid a salary of $15 a week before the primaries and election, and also 25 cents for each Jewish voter he registered, was cross-examined by Judge Louis Swig, son of Representative Swig, and one of his attorneys.

In answer to questions, Prussian testified:

"I received a check for $50 from Simon Swig immediately after the election. I cashed the check at the Tremont Trust Company. I kept $5 and opened a deposit with the rest.

"When I asked contributions from Judge Edward McManus and other non-Jewish voters I told them Swig had not asked me to collect money for him."

Burnett Leavett, business manager of the Jewish Voice, testified that the paper published a Swig ad. four times during October, but that Swig had nothing to do with the publishing of the ad.

FINED FOR STEALING BENEFACTOR'S SUIT

John J. Delehanty was convicted in South Boston court today of stealing a suit of clothes from Walter Bogush of No. 295 D street and was fined $10. According to the testimony Delehanty went to Bogush and told him he was out of work. Bogush shared his room and meals with Delehanty until yesterday, when he found that Delehanty had stolen his clothes.

Error in Name Halts Wedding of Clinton Man

Clinton, Feb. 4.—His first wife's carelessness in stating the truth, but not the whole truth, in getting her divorce fifteen years ago in Chicago, is causing all kinds of trouble for Charles Greenough of this city.

Greenough wants to marry his landlady, Mrs. Jennie Harvey, and take over full responsibility for her and five children. It now seems that he can't, however, because his name is Greenough and his first wife has told the court that his name was plain Charles Green.

Now he hasn't any wife at all and he wants one, but he can't prove that he hasn't one. And there's the rub.

Greenough says his ex-wife now lives in Leominster and that he has been free for fifteen years, but when he start d to get the papers they were missing. He says the trouble is that they are made out in the name of Charles Green.

FOUR ARRESTS AT PLYMOUTH MILL GATES

Plymouth, Feb. 4.—A crowd of strikers estimated at 700 surrounded the plant of the Plymouth Cordage Company here today, and though held in check by 150 policemen, became so threatening that four were arrested.

The four, it is claimed, were leaders in the throng. There were about thirty women in the crowd. They swarmed about the gates of the mill and hooted and jeered at the workers going into the plant.

The police hesitated to interfere forcibly, till a crowd of strikers at last began to jostle approaching workmen. Then the police charged into the crowd and made arrests.

A Real Flesh Builder For Thin People

Thin men and women—that big, hearty, filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are probably sadly out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out the foolish foods and funny sawdust diets. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating and eat with every one of those a single Sargol tablet. In two weeks note the difference. Let the scales be the judge. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy, "stay-there" fat may be the net result. Sargol aims to charge weak, stagnant blood with millions of fresh new red blood corpuscles—to give the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food, to prepare it for the blood in an easily assimilated form. Thin people tell how they have gained all the way from 10 to 25 pounds a month while taking Sargol and say that the new flesh stays put. Sargol tablets are a careful combination of six of the best assimilative elements known to chemistry. They come 40 tablets to a package, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, and all good druggists in this country sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back as found in every large package.

LOOKING FOR WORK

So many men complain about work; even boys and girls find their duties tedious and irksome, but it is really their own lack of physical strength that makes it hard.

Rich blood, strong lungs and healthful digestion make work pleasurable in business, in school or about housework and if you who are easily tired—who are not sick, but weak and nervous—would just take Scott's Emulsion for one month and let its pure, concentrated food create richer blood to pulsate through every artery and vein—let it build a structure of healthy tissue and give you vigorous strength—you would find work easy and would look for more. Always insist on Scott's.

Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 15-33

Careless Use of Soap Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully. If you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and even "pure" shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil(which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

The Treatment of Influenza or La Grippe

It is quite refreshing these days to read of a clearly defined treatment for influenza or La Grippe. In an article in the "Lancet-Clinic," Dr. James Bell, of New York City, says he is convinced that too much medicine is both unnecessary and injurious.

When called to a case of la grippe, the patient is usually seen when the fever is present, as the chill which occasionally ushers in the disease, has practically passed away. Dr. Bell then orders that the bowels be opened freely with salts, "Aconite" or citrate of magnesia. For the high fever, severe headache, pain and general soreness, one anti-kamnia tablet every three hours is quickly followed by complete relief. Ask for A-K Tablets. They are also unexcelled for headache, neuralgia and all pains.

BOSTON NURSE IS ACCUSED BY VON MACH

Dr. Edmund von Mach of Cambridge today gave the facts to support the statement in one of his speeches that "an act of great cruelty" had taken place in a hospital in a large Eastern city.

Dr. von Mach in a letter today to the AMERICAN gives the evidence upon which he based his statement. He declares the act to which he referred took place at the Boston City Hospital.

He said that a little boy "whose nurse threatened to cut out his tongue if he should ever say again that he was a German," is the son of B. J. Arntz of Broadway, South Boston.

Mrs. Freda Arntz, mother of the boy, hore out Dr. von Mach's statement. She charged that Miss Agnes Doherty, a nurse at the City Hospital, held a pair of scissors before the boy's face and told him she would cut out his tongue if he said he was a German.

"Miss Doherty then told him to say he was English," said the mother.

NURSE DENIES CHARGE.

When asked about the matter, Miss Doherty made an emphatic denial.

"I never said any such thing to the child," she stated.

"There is no use in Miss Doherty's denying it," said Mrs. Arntz. "When my boy, whose name is Herbert, was about to leave the hospital, I told him to bid Miss Doherty goodby. But he would not do it.

"I thought this strange, to when we got home I asked him the reason. He then told me that because he said he was a German Miss Doherty had held a pair of scissors before him and threatened to cut out his tongue if he said again that he was a German. He said she then told him to say he was English.

"Herbert is six years old and is undoubtedly telling the truth. Miss Doherty can deny it all she pleases. My boy had no reason to make up such a story. I believe it is the truth.

"The head nurse and doctors were kind to Herbert, but Miss Doherty frightened him when she held the scissors before his face and said what she did."

REPORTS MATTER TO MAYOR.

It is stated that the father of the boy had seen Mayor Curley about the matter.

Dr. von Mach's statement in the case follows:

Editor of the American:

I have just learned that on January 22 a Boston paper with a large morning circulation referred editorially to my speech at the National Americanization convention in Philadelphia, and most especially to an act of great cruelty which I related as having taken place in a hospital in one of our large eastern cities.

It was the story of the little boy who charged that his nurse had threatened to cut out his tongue if he should ever again say that he was German. The comment is as follows:

"This is a charge of the most serious nature. It is neither manly nor just to enshroud it with the slightest mystery or anonymity.

TOLD AS "BAIT" FOR PAPERS.

"If Herr von Mach knows the name and place of the hospital, the name of the little boy and the name of the nurse against whom the grave accusation is made, he should lose no time in making them public.

"If he does not know these particulars, he should have been ashamed to tell the story."

When I told this story in Philadelphia I fervently hoped that it might act as a bait for one or another of the papers that had repeated slanderous stories about Germany and the German conduct of the war, enshrouding them always with "mystery and anonymity."

But that I should be happy enough to catch a large Boston paper I had hardly dared to hope.

BOY BUTT OF JOKES.

Do you realize that the Bryce report on German atrocities in Belgium does not contain a single definite name and that all the papers that have printed it, at least in abstracts, and have enlarged upon its conclusions, have done the very thing with which I am charged?

The only difference between the American press that prints such slanders sent from London, and me, is that I know the facts and the press does not.

The charge against the nurse, to which I referred, has been made by R. J. Arntz, whose little boy Herbert was a patient at the South Department of the Boston City Hospital from November 23 to December 20.

While one of the physicians asserts that he had never "heard doctors, nurses, attendants, orderlies or patients, make any statement of remarks against his nationality," one of the house officers deposes that the boy "was joked with frequently, both by myself and an associate house officer." These gentlemen considered it funny, in the Boston City Hospital, to tease the boy about his nationality.

Another attendent, while assuring the superintendent that she had never done it "maliciously," acknowledges that she "often called him every nationality but German."

With such an atmosphere pervading the Boston City Hospital I am perfectly willing to leave it to any unprejudiced person, or preferably to the audience at a public hearing, whether the charge is true or not. Yours very truly,

EDMUND VON MACH.

POLICE CHIEFS TURN DOWN $5,000 OFFER

The Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Union, at its annual meeting at the American House, refused an offer of a New York advertising firm for $5,000 for the use of the organization's name for three years. The union elected Chief McDermott of the Woburn police president.

HERBERT ARNTZ, six-year-old South Boston boy whom a City Hospital nurse is alleged to have threatened with injury because of his German nationality.

Morphine Outfit Was a Keepsake, but 'Never Again'

Donald Weaver, machinist on the steamer Canadian, will accept no more hypodermic needles for keepsakes from soldier friends. Combined with accidental scratches on the arm they make a man look queer to the police.

Donald came ashore yesterday sightseeing, was arrested for intoxication and was searched at Court square police station. A cartridge belt, puttees and "hypo" needle were found on him.

"Where do you shoot the stuff, in your arm?" asked the police.

"Stuff nothing," retorted Donald, "I'll explain. In Liverpool I met a friend in the One Hundred and Forty-ninth Irish Cavalry. He gave me the belt, puttees and needle to remember him by. I had no use for the needle, but took it just the same. I'm no morphine fiend, not me."

Two little marks were found on Donald's left forearm.

"Can't a man get scratches on his arm working around machinery," howled Donald.

Donald convinced the officers. And later he was freed.

IF BACK HURTS TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Says Backache is sure sign you have been eating too much meat.

Uric Acid in meat clogs Kidneys and irritates the bladder.

Many folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Advertisement.

FORMER HARVARD CLUB HOUSE BURNS

Two alarms were sounded for a fire of supposed incendiary origin which destroyed the three-story, thirty-room mansion formerly occupied by the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity of Harvard, No. 20 Prescott street, Cambridge, early today.

The blaze was the second of suspicious origin to occur in that city within the past twenty-four hours. A search is now being made for the supposed incendiary.

The mansion, which has been vacant for the past eighteen months, was practically destroyed. The damage was estimated by fire officials at $25,000.

QUINCY BURGLAR GETS GEMS AND CASH

The boarding house of Mrs. Frank H. Skinner of Upland road, Quincy, was entered by a burglar while the inmates were away, and three rooms ransacked. Miss Eva M. The room of Charles L. Dacey, a school teacher, was entered, but nothing was taken. In the room of Miss Grace E. Drumm, a school teacher, the thief missed a large sum of money and a gold watch.

AMAZING COST OF WAR SHOWN BY M'SWEENEY

Chairman Edward F. McSweeney of the Port Directors, speaking before the Dorchester Board of Trade, by comparisons strikingly brought home the actual cost of the war.

"It has already cost," he said, "twice as much as it has cost to run the United States government, including all our wars, from the end of the Revolution till today.

"The cost of the war for 17 days would build a city of the assessed valuation of Boston."

FEAR MELROSE COUPLE LOST WITH SHIP

Greater Boston friends and relatives of Captain Charles H. Bergmann of Melrose, commander of the American steamship Orleanian, long overdue from New York for Malta, are greatly alarmed for the safety of the skipper and his wife, who accompanied her husband on the trip.

Mrs. H. F. Metcalf of Newton, a sister of Mrs. Bergmann, fears that the vessel has met with disaster.

This was the first time Mrs. Bergmann had made an ocean trip with her husband, to the best of her knowledge.

CIVIL ENGINEERS PROTEST ACT OF MAYOR

Mayor Curley's recent discharge of seventeen civil service employes from the Public Works Department may come before the Boston Chamber of Commerce for official action.

An important item on the calendar of this afternoon's regular meeting of the Chamber committee on municipal and metropolitan affairs was a conference with representatives of the engineering interests of Boston, in protest against the discharges.

Seven of the leading civil engineers of the city have issued a statement charging the Mayor with having violated the spirit and intent of the civil service law. The seven signers of the statement are Frederic P. Stearns, Desmond Fitzgerald, Henry F. Bryant, Charles T. Main, Harrison P. Eddy, Frank A. Barbour and Edward C. Sherman.

All are prominent in the American Society of Civil Engineers or the Boston Society of Engineers.

Frederic H. Fay, consulting engineer, is chairman of the Chamber committee. The other committee men are Henry F. Adams, civil engineer; Francis N. Balch, attorney; Albert P. Carter, attorney; Alfred W. Jodin, contractor; James Duncan Phillips, publisher; Frank H. Purington, real estate; George H. Shields, attorney, and Wendell D. Rockwood, wholesale grocer and Mayor of Cambridge.

The statement by Mr. Stearns and his six fellow-signers suggests the need of legislative action, saying:

"It seems to us that, if a competent man can at any time be removed merely by changing the title of his position, the Legislature now in session should consider very seriously whether the civil service laws now on the statute books are effective. The action of Mayor Curley seems to us to constitute an attempt to violate the proper intent of civil service laws."

The statement points out that there was no charge of inefficiency in any instance, and says in this connection:

"If by changing the title of an office it is possible for the Mayor of any city to remove competent and efficient engineers and other trained officials, the inevitable result will be that competent men will refuse to enter the service of our municipalities.

"The action of Mayor Curley is therefore in our opinion not only a vital injury to the cause of good government in Boston, but it is also an affront to the engineering profession."

STRIKE SETTLED IN WINCHESTER

To the Users of Anthracite Coal:

The Anthracite Coal Strike Commission, appointed by Roosevelt, to inquire into labor conditions in the anthracite region, and "to endeavor to establish the relations between the employers and wage workers upon a just and permanent basis," made an award which, with minor modifications and considerable additional concessions to the wage workers at subsequent conferences, is still in force. The last agreement, signed on May 20, 1912, expires on March 31, 1916.

The miners are now demanding substantial concessions, entailing such additional burdens upon the operation of our mines that we deem it our duty to frankly and fully lay before the public the problem which confronts us—A problem which will ultimately affect every user of anthracite coal. The demand for 20 percent increase in wages alone will, in the aggregate, bring about an increase in the cost of anthracite coal to consumers exceeding TWENTY-THREE MILLION DOLLARS a year.

The operation of the anthracite mines of Pennsylvania represents an investment of upwards of $275,000,000 in plant and equipment, in addition to the value of the coal lands leased by the operators.

Mining, though carried on by the most scientific methods, yields an exceedingly small return upon the actual capital invested, and while it is to be freely admitted that certain mines, worked under peculiarly favorable conditions, yield liberal profits, it is equally true that many anthracite mines, the product of which is needed by the public, are at present either operated at no profit, or with so narrow a margin of profit that it is a matter of indifference to the operator whether or not they continue to be operated.

The average returns are entirely too small to meet the increased cost of additional compensation to miners, or substantial changes in conditions of employment, without a consequent increase in the price of coal to the consumer.

We believe that the users of anthracite coal are vitally interested in the readjustment on April 1, 1916, of the relations between the operators and the miners. We propose to acquaint anthracite coal users with the vital conditions of the industry, as well as with the social and working conditions of the army of 180,000 employes, engaged in the operation of the mines.

Because of the extraordinary industrial conditions—caused by the European war, which causes have in no degree benefited the anthracite industry—the price of labor has rapidly advanced. A determined effort will be made by the miners to secure increased wages which would be unexpected and unwarranted in ordinary times.

Such demands, if granted, WOULD PLACE A HEAVY AND PERMANENT BURDEN UPON EVERY USER OF ANTHRACITE COAL.

We have conceived it to be our duty to inform the users of anthracite coal of the state of affairs, in order that an enlightened public sentiment may operate to fairly adjust the conditions, which will arise, and which must be discussed and determined within the next few weeks.

If, after such presentation, the users of anthracite coal say it is our duty to make a large advance in the income of the miners and others employed in the industry, and are prepared to meet the advanced cost by paying a higher price for coal, now is the time to say so, and we can meet the issue on that basis, but if the anthracite coal-using public is opposed to such concessions its voice should be plainly heard.

The coal operators desire to deal justly with their employes, granting every fair request, but they also deem it their duty to protect the coal-consuming public and to conserve its interest, just as they purpose to protect, as far as they are able, their own interests.

We believe that our employes are entitled to receive reasonable wages to meet living conditions, comparable with wages paid in other similar lines of industry, where equal chances for steady employment are offered, provided our employes are willing to co-operate, with their energy and thrift, in securing reasonable efficiency; and that the operators are entitled to receive a reasonable return on their investment, because in this way only can the necessary capital be secured to develop the mines for the increasing public necessities; and we also believe that the consumer should be able to buy his coal at the lowest possible price after these conditions are met.

It is in this spirit that the coal operators approach this vital problem, and they ask fair consideration, by the coal-consuming public, of such facts as will be presented to them, in the belief that this intelligent consideration will insure an equitable adjustment of the approaching negotiations.

CLARA K. YOUNG, 'MOVIE' STAR, IN LOVE SUIT

By International News Service.

New York, Feb. 4.—James Young has filed in the Supreme Court an action for $100,000 damages against Louis J. Selznick, charging him with alienating the affections of Clara Kimball Young.

Mrs. Young, a famous moving picture star, recently sued her husband for separation and the return of $25,000. She claimed he borrowed the money from her. Within the past two weeks Selznick, who is her business manager, organized the Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation—a $1,000,000 company—to feature her in the "movies."

Young charges that Selznick employed the contract with Mrs. Young as the leading inducement for getting her to leave her husband. Selznick and Mrs. Young deny that her affections were alienated. They assert she left her husband because she was dissatisfied with his treatment of her.

Miss Kimball married Young in 1910. He says they lived happily together until December 5. He alleges that "defendant told the plaintiff's wife that plaintiff was a great detriment to her artistic advancement and career and not fit to be her husband and companion. Defendant promised to enter into a contract for the posing and making of pictures of the plaintiff's wife on the express condition that she must leave his bed and board of the plaintiff."

"Pursuant to this scheme," Young continues, "the defendant did enter into a contract with her to appear under defendant's management. By means of representations which were false and untrue, defendant enticed her away from plaintiff to a separate residence and harbored her against the consent of the plaintiff and by the utmost efforts to get her from the custody and control of defendant."

In his answer Selznick makes a general denial, and asserts that Mrs. Young did not live happily with her husband, as he contends, prior to their separation.

MELROSE YOUTH BADLY FROZEN; LOSES FEET

Andrew Maclachlan, Jr., nineteen, of Melrose, the long-missing son of Andrew J. Maclachlan, proprietor of the Technology stationery store on Boylston street, is in a serious condition at an Albany, N. Y., hospital today, following the amputation of his feet above the ankles.

The boy was located at the hospital by his parents after a search begun upon his disappearance January 15. They are now at his bedside.

Young Maclachlan vanished while suffering from a temporary delirium brought on by the grippe. Owing to his condition he has been unable to throw any light upon his recent wanderings.

If You Have Tuberculosis

It is most important that you should pay proper attention to diet and living conditions, and get plenty of rest and fresh air day and night. Many a life claimed by this disease might have been saved by timely attention to these matters. In most cases, however, a rundown system needs assistance. Under these circumstances, try Eckman's Alterative, a time treatment which has the unique quality of being easily assimilated by the average person.

Give Nature every chance, but strengthen your own chances by using this remedy, which has effected beneficial results in many cases.

No undue claims are made for it, but it has helped in many cases. And it is safe to try, for it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs. Sold by all Rikers-Drug Stores and leading druggists.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—From what could be learned here today regarding the staging of the Jess Willard-Frank Moran fight in this city March 17, the only two big men mixed up in the match now in New York—Promoter "Tex" Rickard and Ike Dorgan, Moran's manager—state they are still waiting for details from Chicago.

Regarding the amount of purse announced from Chicago—$67,500—Rickard did not think the amount was correct. According to his version the sum would be $60,000, to be divided $40,000 to Willard and $20,000 to Moran.

While non-committal as to whether he would stand for the extra $7,500 it appears certain this sum would not stand in the way of the bout.

As far as this site is concerned, Rickard declared today he had three arenas in view, and would probably make a definite announcement in a few days.

Madison Square Garden already has been engaged for a monster ball March 17, and it is a question whether that affair could be ousted to make room for the fight.

Rickard Cannot Pull Big Battle as an Individual

—Fred A. Wenck.

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Fred A. Wenck, chairman of the State Athletic Commission, was asked today regarding the staging of the big bout.

"Will Tex Rickard be allowed to conduct this fight in Madison Square Garden?" was the first query.

"Not as an individual," he responded, "for the Show Corporation has a license to hold boxing shows in the big arena. Rickard could make satisfactory arrangements with the Show Corporation, though we would only recognize the legitimate club in all transactions and hold it responsible for everything.

"At the same time," concluded the chairman, "there is no doubt that the commission will do everything in its power to see that all arrangements are made to protect the public. Speaking for myself, I believe it would be a good idea to make all parties concerned post suitable forfeits to live up to their contracts."

COULON SIGNS FOR COME-BACK BATTLE

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Johnny Coulon, ex-bantamweight champion, plans making an effort to come back and has signed to meet Frankie Dean, February 21, at Columbus, O. If successful, after his two years' lay-off, Coulon will seek a return battle with "Kid" Williams for his old crown.

Willard to Meet Moran Terms of Title Battle

By SAM P. HALL.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—Jess Willard and Frank Moran are to battle in Madison Square Garden, New York, the night of March 17. The match was closed here yesday, "Tex" Rickard and his associates outbidding Jack Curley for the heavyweight championship plum.

Dave Lewisohn of this city closed the deal for Rickard. The champion is to get $47,500 for his services, also a 51 per cent. privilege in the moving pictures and advertising rights. His manager, Tom Jones, receives $2,500 of this money on the spot.

Bob Vernon, as stakeholder, is to pocket $20,000 of Willard's money next Wednesday, and the remaining $25,000 is to be turned over to Jess not later than twenty-four hours before the men are scheduled to enter the ring. Moran is then a flat guarantee of $20,000.

This purse breaks three records. It is the largest ever offered for a ten-round, no-decision fight, the highest previous amount being $12,500 handed "Packey" McFarland and Mike Gibbons at Brighton Beach last Summer. The $47,500 is the largest price ever paid a champion for a scheduled ten-round fight and the $20,000 is the record for money slipped a challenger for a similar effort in the fighting line.

The report that Curley had signed Willard to fight Jack Dillon in an open-air arena in New York in April is erroneous. Jones stated today that he had been made a proposition for a fight with Dillon, but had not accepted it and did not intend to sign for more than one match at this writing.

The trouble anticipated in the Willard camp between the Jones and Curley forces did not materialize as far as is known. Curley did not display any signs of anger when the match went to Rickard and McCrackin.

Curley arrived from New York in the morning and shortly before noon met Jones, Willard and Lewisohn at the Morrison Hotel. Curley was prepared to make bids to Willard for battles with both Moran and Dillon, but when Jack learned that Jess would be ready to fight in March, pondered over the fact that he had only an outdoor arena, and, listening to the offer of the Rickard representative, immediately dropped out of the running.

It took but a brief time before Lewisohn had the consent of Jones and Willard and the match was made. Rickard approved the deal over the long-distance telephone.

The first bid made by Lewisohn only involved $40,000. Curley stuck with him a while, going as high as $45,000 as a starter and a 45 per cent. privilege of the gross gate receipts, with the picture and advertising privileges much better, and Curley then gave up. Jack drew up some articles of agreement which were signed by the parties present.

Just before they adjourned it was agreed that all the gentlemen concerned should meet in New York next Wednesday, post forfeits and sign legal articles under the laws of New York State. Then there will be no "out" for any of the persons bound by the agreement.

It was stipulated that the seat prices range from $5 to $1. Jack Skelly of Yonkers, N. Y., was recommended as referee by the Willard people, but Lewisohn said that question would have to be settled later.

Curley asserted the promoters would have to take in $100,000 at the Garden doors before they will have a chance to break even.

Drew Stops to a Walk When He Cannot Get Up

New York, Feb. 4.—Howard P. Drew, the University of Southern California flyer and holder of the world's 100-yard record, virtually quit in the 70-yard handicap dash at the Seventy-first Infantry A. A. games last night. Drew pulled up after running about fifty yards and crossed the finish line almost last.

The dusky sprinter got away well, but seemed in for a beating. However, he claimed the change in the weather had tightened the muscles of his legs and he feared he might have injured himself permanently if he had kept going.

Two armory records were smashed in the contests closed to the Seventy-first Regiment guardsmen. In the 16-pound shot put, T. L. Matsuka, the Greek weight-thrower, representing Company K, increased the record from 44 ft. 5 in., made by himself in 1913, to 45 ft. 3½ in.

YALE LOOKING FOR T. JONES BY FEB. 18

By International News Service.

New Haven, Ct., Feb. 4.—Ted Jones, Yale's new head coach, and Mike Sweeney, general athletic adviser, are expected to arrive no later than February 18 to begin the work of reorganizing Yale athletics. Sweeney will take each sport in turn for an overhauling and attempt to bring conditions up-to-date.

"THE RABBIT'S" COLUMN By Walter J. Maranville HORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

You recall that I stated the list of officers of the Braves, when announced, would be a representative one. It more than came up to expectations. The club is certainly in the strongest of hands, financially, socially and politically.

Hal Chase and George Stovall seem to be very much on the outside looking in. While Ban B. Johnson states that there is no blacklist, it is pretty hard to determine under what heading the exclusion from the American League of these players comes.

* * *

Fred Mitchell's charges will line up against the Red Sox in the first game of the 1914 season, to be played at Fenway Park. You can bet Fred will try to have his men in shape to give the World's Champions some lively practice.

* * *

"No Hit No Run" Davis asks to be permitted to report after the examinations at Harvard Law School in June. Manager Stallings needs all the pitchers he can get to work from the first day of Spring training to the finish of the season.

* * *

The return of Walter Camp to Yale's football committee is a notable incident in the history of that sport at New Haven. "Ted" Jones' appointment as head coach is also a move in the right direction.

* * *

Snowshoes are more in order today than the old spike shoes of the diamond. However, under the weight of snow lies the old field. When the time comes to get busy just watch "Tapa Rabbit." He will be out there hustling his head off for the new and distinguished owners of the Braves.

* * *

They tell a story of a sporting editor of one of the local papers who was such a bug on baseball that each day when he came into the office he would mark off one day on the big calendar over his desk, remarking: "Only — days to Spring training." While I am not anxious to leave home with its added attractiveness, still I cannot but call attention to the fact that we are just 25 days away from Spring training.

This will snow rag to your neck" sounds pretty good to me.

Chicago Mermen Establish Two New Records

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Two world's swimming records were broken at the Illinois Athletic Club invitation meet last night. In the 100-yard swim Perry McGillivray, I. A. C., covered the distance in 54 seconds flat, two-fifths of a second better than the mark made by A. C. Ralthel and Duke Kahanomoku.

Mike McDermott's time of 22 seconds in the 50-yard backstroke adds another world's record to the I. A. C. stars collection. Harry Hebner, I. A. C., splintered his own mark in the 100-yard medley event with a 1m. 9 1-5s. card.

While traveling the century course, McGillivray shaved 11-5 seconds off Charley Daniels' time for the 50-yard, with 41 4-5s.

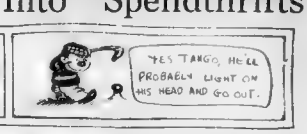
BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS



BANTAMS STARS IN ON EDGE FOR GO

"Mickey" Brown and Eddie Campi, Two Peppery Ringsters, Clash at B. M. A. A.

BOSTON has its first professional sport show of the week tonight

Where the Hippodrome suffered a double postponement, the Armory A A boxing show Tuesday night being devised of, owing to Mile Glover being compelled to cancel his Jack Britton engagement on account of sickness, and George Tuohey forced to withdraw by a sporting carnival, booked for the Tremont street rink-op last night, when Takakichi, the jiu jitsu expert, got snowbound en route last from Chicago, the B. M. A. A. rings up the curtain on his weekly boxing show at Hibernian Hall, Roxbury, tonight.

Two new faces but not strangers to Boston fans will appear in the ring, and the management is confident that the boys will put up a classy exhibition. The principals are Eddie "Mickey" Brown, Eddie Campi, the latter of whom has been matched to meet Johnny Dundee at Mechanics Building in the near future. Campi is a Boston boy and has a host of friends who will be out to see him make his debut. There are nine bouts in all.

COMING IN OVER LIMIT.

Brown and Campi are scheduled to go 12 rounds. That's five rounds above the limit of the Massachusetts law, but it will be a case of the extra attendance only being superior scrapping. The two boys are said to be well matched, and this bout should be a corker. Jack Williams will referee the bout. One of the classy preliminaries is a meeting between Young Nonpareil Jones and Johnny Cox.

On next Saturday night Battling Levinsky, the Canadian Assassin, was disqualified in the fifth round for delivering a low blow. Whatever the decision may be, Battling Levinsky longed to Jack Dillon and claimed that the Wild Irishman knocked him out with a low punch. Levinsky has not had a bout on Wednesday night since November, so he is doing anything but resting. Referee Matty Matthews will pass on the boys' merits.

TWO CLASSY BROILERS.

Brown as well as Campi is a favorite in New York and is supported in the Metropolis by a good following. Campi showed up well in his last appearance here, when he and Jeffries Bennett, a Lynn boy, battled to a draw. Bennett is now in the Navy and is stationed at the Charlestown Navy Yard. Campi and Bennett will meet again, and the latter will have a host of friends present to root for him.

Promoter Buckley has a good show on hand, and the bouts will start at 8 o'clock sharp.

A FINE RACE.

However, it is safe to say that the Brown-Campi bout will be the star attraction, as it is granted that Ray and Eddie will be two truly runners to finish. Each has a host of friends who will be out to see them do their best. This bout should be a corker from start to finish, and the boys will put up a classy exhibition.

Matthews will referee the bout, and he will see that the boys do their best. Every boy who has ever been seen there in a boxing show will be there, and the management is confident that a record attendance will be present. Tuohey will be out to see the boys do their best, and he will be there to see that they do.

Promoter Buckley has a good show on hand, and the bouts will start at 8 o'clock sharp.

STARS IN THE BIG RACE

Five Men Face the Line in Hunter Mile and New Record Is Expected.

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR

SOMETIME today Joe Loomis, the marvelous young Chicago runner, will arrive in Boston to compete in the B. A. A. games in Mechanics Building tomorrow night. Already the carpenters, working under the direction of George V. Brown of the B. A. A., have completed their task of installing the corners for the thirteen laps to the mile track.

It is not the first time that Loomis has come to Boston to make those corners somewhere around the B. A. A. clubhouse. Boston track fans will be pleased to learn that the Chicago boy has decided to make the trip, to arrive either tonight or early tomorrow morning. He will be met at the train by Brown and Thomas Jeffers, for competition is the breath of life to Loomis.

Almost every set of records established in Mechanics Building during the past few years might be said to be the result of a stunning event, with attendance in addition to a thrilling race in progress. In New York's Madison Square Garden the Hunter mile, Alfred A. Shrubb versus Joseph Loomis, and a 6-lap handicap, with two laps to the mile, drew 20,000 persons. The Hunter mile, one of the classic distances, was run in 4:16 2-5, a new world's record. Shrubb was scheduled to run against Loomis in the Hunter mile at the Boston A. A. games, but Loomis was unable to be present. Shrubb was then matched to run against Cornell, but he was unable to be present. Shrubb was then matched to run against Cornell, but he was unable to be present.

Mike Murphy, the Pennsylvania coach, was also scheduled to run against Loomis in the Hunter mile at the Boston A. A. games, but Loomis was unable to be present. Murphy was then matched to run against Cornell, but he was unable to be present.

Walter Gordon, another Loomis opponent, has also been matched to run against Loomis in the Hunter mile at the Boston A. A. games, but Loomis was unable to be present. Gordon was then matched to run against Cornell, but he was unable to be present.

Loomis will be accompanied by his trainer, Mike Murphy, and by his manager, Walter Gordon. Loomis will be met at the train by Brown and Thomas Jeffers, for competition is the breath of life to Loomis.

LINCOLN ESSAY CONTEST HAS LARGE ENTRY

One week remains before the birthday of America's foremost citizen and statesman.

The Abraham Lincoln celebration in honor of New Americans to take place in the Old South Meeting House on the evening of February 12 is to be a memorable patriotic occasion, according to the committee in charge of the program.

Speakers representing many nationalities have been invited, among whom are: John Sliski, editor of the Polish weekly the Pobudka; James V. Donnarumma, editor of the Italian Weekly Gazetta; Jocob J. DeHass, editor of a Jewish weekly the Advocate; Stanwood W. Field, director of Boston Evening Schools; Mrs. Eva W. White, director of school centres; Miss Francis Curtis, Boston School Committee; representatives of Mayor Curley and of Governor McCall.

Prize essays written by New Americans will also be read.

Essays already arriving at the office of the Boston AMERICAN have the fault of extreme length. Two hundred and fifty words is the limit. Authors for the prizes must have been born abroad and must be between the ages of sixteen and twenty-five. The subject of the prize essay may be any phase of Lincoln's life.

Here is a letter which Lincoln wrote to a bereaved woman who lost her boys in the Civil War, and which may suggest ideas for an essay or letter:

Executive Mansion,
Washington, Nov. 21, 1864.

To Mrs. Bixby, Boston, Mass.

Dear Madam:—I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle.

I feel how weak and fruitless must be any word of mine which should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the Republic they died to save.

I pray that our Heavenly Father assuage the anguish of your bereavement and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the alter of freedom.

Yours ve y sincerly and respectfully, A. Lincoln.

A prize of five dollars will be given for the best letter, and many books dealing with the life and saying of Lincoln will be contributed by Boston publishers as other prizes.

All essays must be sent to the Lincoln Editor, Boston AMERICAN.

"LES SYLPHIDES" BALLET HAS CHARM

In marked contrast to the barbaric spectacles of the week at the Boston Opera House was the presentation last night of a frankly old-fashioned type of ballet performance by the Russians. This was the romantic revery, "Les Sylphides," a Chopin interpretation, the only new number of the evening.

"Les Sylphides" was a great garden of girls, all giving the impression of animated lilies, when they did not seem so many white butterflies. They were all in refreshing white, grouping and pirouetting under the shade of a very dark wood.

Only one male dancer entered this fairy, and he was Mr. Gavrilow, clad in snug and simple rustic style. He was enamored of the chief sylph, impersonated by Mme. Lydia Lopokowa, and served as an athletic foil to her dainty and charming flutterings.

There were many waltz numbers, a revival warmly welcomed by many in the audience as a relief from the crashing strains and garish splendor of the other ballets. While of a more conventional type than the other ballets presented, "Les Sylphides" was tuneful, vivacious, wholesome, and left a pleasant memory. It should win liberal patronage at its further presentations.

The other numbers of the evening were the unended but still sensuous "Sheherazade," the freakish novelty, "An Afternoon With a Faun," and the mad frenzy of color and riot of dancing, "Prince Igor."

TREMONT TEMPLE CONCERT DELIGHTS

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Opera Night" at Tremont Temple attracted a large audience to the big auditorium last evening. The artists were, Lillia Snelling, mezzo-soprano, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera company; Attilio di Crescenzo, tenor, and Nicholas Oulukanoff, baritone, formerly of the Boston Opera company. A large chorus, directed by John A. O'Shea, assisted. The chorus numbers were, "Pilgrims' Chorus" from "Tannhauser;" "Soldiers' Chorus," from "Faust," and "Grand March" from "Aida."

Miss Snelling made an agreeable impression in her songs and arias, which included air from "Gioconda" and Bizet's "Agnus Dei."

Di Crescenzo is a very magnetic young Italian with a pure lyric voice of much sweetness and power. He sings the popular tenor arias with great success.

Mr. Oulukanoff is an artistic, but hardly impressive, baritone. The chorus sang with spirit under the excellent direction of Mr. O'Shea.

The next concert of the series occurs February 24, when Alice Nelsen and Emanuel Ondricela will be the performers.

GIVE DINNER TO FAIRBANK MEN

The Boston Sales Branch of the N. K. Fairbank Company tendered an informal dinner at Hotel Essex last night to a number of its New England representatives. O. E. Nystedt of the Boston sales branch, presided and addressed the gathering. J. S. Goodway and J. G. Hewitt, jobbing salesmen, also spoke.

The following salesmen were present: E. C. Trask, White River Junction, Vt.; W. H. Bullock, Springfield; H. B. Gladwin, Portland, Me.; L. A. McMahon, New Haven, Ct.; G. D. Mitchell, Providence; G. H. Crowell, Hartford, Ct.; Joseph LaCasse, Boston; C. E. Jenkins, Lynn; G. H. Kimball, Boston; C. H. Wentworth, Bridgeport, Ct.; F. A. Slocum, Fall River; C. J. Murphy, Lowell; C. W. Shaw, Boston and S. P. Hadley, cashier.

PLAN AN OUTLET FOR U.S.-MADE GOODS

By B. C. FORBES.

New York, Feb. 4.—The United States is becoming the "Big Brother of the new world."

The "Big Brother" means to protect the little brothers from outside gang.

When battleships have crossed the Atlantic to coerce the little brothers they cause usually to failure to pay their debts.

Now, the United States is in a fair way to remove this kind of excuse for infringing upon the Monroe Doctrine.

By supplying capital to Latin American countries on occasion for quarrelling between them and European powers will be lessened if not removed.

This important fact has not received recognition.

I have propounded the idea to leading international bankers having interests in Latin America, and there the subject is one worthy of action-wide recognition.

In the past South and Central American countries have not always lived up to financial obligations entered into with European lenders.

When trouble threatened, the position of the United States was anomalous to Europe.

We said: "You must not take steps to force any Latin Republic to live up to its covenants."

Europe replied: "You will make good our losses then?"

We are not always able to give such assurances.

Europe will not be in a position to compare the financial aid of America for some years.

The United States is in a position to do so.

But our financiers are anxious to know where they will stand if they send capital into this field.

If important loans are granted and the borrowing nation tries to repudiate the debt, will the United States government stand behind the just demands of its citizens?

Will it follow the old principle of the British government, the French government and the German government in this respect?

Will Latin-American countries be told fairly and squarely that, when they enter into agreements with the United States citizens they must honestly live up to their word and their bond?

When property of our citizens was wilfully destroyed in Mexico what the Washington official protested?

Nobody asked you to invest your money there. You should have stayed at home.

Such pinheaded policies are entirely inconsistent with today's and tomorrow's conditions.

We cannot build a Chinese wall around our borders. We still citizens we must stay inside it and take no part in developing our southern neighbors.

Every intelligent adult realizes the importance of finding outlets for American goods.

Duma to Meet Feb. 18.

Petrograd, Feb. 4.—The Novoe Vremya has learned from a reliable source that the Duma will assemble on February 18.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in New York at the opening, but a number of active issues showed small gains. The market lacked distinctive features and traders began the day in a cautious frame of mind. The advance of yesterday failed to find a response in buying orders from the outside. But the supply of stock was also limited and many traders, who will talk bearish as a class were adverse to committing themselves for another decline. U. S. Steel started to regain unfinished ground, Crucible Steel was up 3¼, Baldwin started with a fractional advance, but reacted to a point below yesterday's close. Railroads and coppers were irregular. Business was of a moderate volume only. There was general discussion of the selling of U. S. bonds by Germany, that her 1910 issue obtained unsupplied demands from this country, that her 1910 issue obtained unsupplied demands from this country, that her 1910 issue obtained unsupplied demands from this country

Railroads and Employes Should Reach Agreement by Mutual Fair Play

THIS dispute between the railroads and their employes is a serious matter. If it can be amicably settled, the country will go on its rapidly prospering way.

If it should come to a general strike, the whole country will suffer great loss, and business and employment of all kinds will be lessened and halted.

Therefore it is to the interest of every one of us to do what can be done to bring about a satisfactory settlement of the dispute before it results in strikes and business disaster.

We believe this can be done if public opinion is brought to bear upon both sides, in the interests of a settlement fair to both.

The railroad employes demand an eight-hour day, with time and a half for overtime, and threaten to strike unless their demands are conceded.

The railroads claim that they cannot grant the eight-hour day or the time and a half for overtime.

Our own conviction is that a fair settlement would be for the roads to concede the eight-hour day and the men to withdraw the demand for time-and-a-half pay for overtime.

First, let us consider the overtime demand.

The men declare that they have set the pay for overtime at such a high figure because this will deter the roads from wanting any man to work overtime.

But in other businesses this has not proved to be true.

There is always a certain amount of work to be done each day by each railroad, and if it is not accomplished in regular time it MUST be done in overtime. And experience shows that many men will do as little work as possible during the short work-day in order to create overtime work and get the 50 per cent. higher pay.

This not only defeats the very object of the eight-hour day, but makes labor cost unfairly high to the employer.

What labor should desire is the short day with the least possible overtime work and the least possible incentive for schemers to create a need for overtime work.

So we most sincerely and earnestly advise the men to withdraw this demand, in their own interest, in the interest of their employers, and in the interest of the public, which finally "pays the freight."

On the other hand, we think the railroads should concede the eight-hour day as their contribution to a peaceful settlement.

We think that eight hours is long enough to work—that the short day is the most profitable day for both employers and employes.

It is the work-day made obligatory by law for all government employes, and in many States for workers in certain industries, for women wage-earners and for State employes. It is also the length of day recognized by thousands of private manufacturing and trading concerns.

For national reasons the railroad employes should have an eight-hour day.

The first care of any nation should be to have the healthiest, most intelligent and most contented citizenry it is possible to have.

Of the actual male wage-workers of the United States, about one in ten is a railroad employe, and there are about 7,000,000 American men, women and children who depend for their mode of living, their mode of education, their final physical, moral and mental fitness to exercise citizenship, upon the wages paid by the railroads.

The shorter the working day and the better the pay the railroad wage-earners get, within fair limits, the higher will be the moral, physical and mental fitness of 2,000,000 male citizens and their families.

Such a tremendous factor in national life and national character and national productivity cannot be disregarded by a wise people.

But the railroads stoutly assert that they already pay the highest possible wages, and so maintain the best possible standard of citizenship.

The one weakness in this reply is that it is not true.

The average daily wage paid railroad workers is $16.06 to general officers, $2.54 to general office clerks, $2.33 to station agents, $1.98 to other station men, $5.24 to engineers, $3.22 to firemen, $4.17 to conductors, $3.09 to trainmen, $3.26 to machinists, $2.66 to carpenters, $2.36 to shopmen, $1.59 to trackmen, $1.71 to switchtenders and watchmen, $2.56 to telegraph operators and dispatchers.

These are official statistics. They speak for themselves. And they surely do not tell any story of high wages or of men earning enough to keep and to educate their families to be first-class citizens.

We think you will agree with us that these wages are NOT ENOUGH FOR A TEN-HOUR DAY, and NOT ANY TOO MUCH FOR AN EIGHT-HOUR DAY, and that in demanding a reduction of hours the railroad employes are well within the limits of moderation.

We think the railroads and the men should get together on the reasonable common ground suggested.

We understand the difficulty in the way.

There is a certain total of revenue to be divided

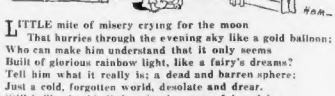
More Truth Than Poetry

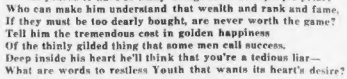
By James J. Montague

Babies



LITTLE mite of misery crying for the moon
That hurries through the evening sky like a gold balloon;
Who can make him understand that it only seems
Built of glorious rainbow light, like a fairy's dreams?
Tell him what it really is; a dead and barren sphere;
Just a cold, forgotten world, desolate and drear.
Still he'll raise his little voice in sorrowful acclaim.
It makes no difference to him—he wants it just the same.

AND when, in the years that come, with troubled, wistful eyes,
He yearns to have so many things that other people prize;
Who can make him understand that wealth and rank and fame,
If they must be too dearly bought, are never worth the game?
Tell him the tremendous cost in golden happiness
Of the thinly gilded thing that some men call success.
Deep inside his heart he'll think that you're a tedious liar—
What are words to restless Youth that wants its heart's desire?



Awful Vengeance of William Barnes

We have discovered why Mr. Barnes is not going to the Chicago convention. He thinks that if there is a convention Roosevelt may be nominated. And, of course, if he stays away there can't be any convention.

He Deserves It

If the Mikado has any gratitude at all he will do something handsome for William J. Bryan.

Fortunately for the Country

Secretary Daniels' actions are reports upon his incapacity that even he cannot suppress.

Too Late

Gentlemen who pen "Hoofui baby" letters usually wish, a little later, that they had been too proud to write.

Why Waste Time?

Mr. Wilson's organ complains that he doesn't take the American people into his confidence. Well, as Mr. Barnes says, the consciousness of one's own rectitude requires no defence. And, anyway, how can the President talk to the American people when he's so busy writing to Colonel House and the crowned heads of Europe?

Vain Regrets

With the advent of Jackson Day it is noticed that the loss of the Iron President was never so observable as it has been in the last three years.

Wholly Credible

Mr. Bryan denies that he gave Greece any naval secrets. No one will doubt Mr. Bryan if he denies that he never gave anybody anything.

Pneumonia and the Grip

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects.

THE things we dread most about the grip is its after-effects.

Partly in the sense of the deadly depression and weakness, the feeling of utter good-for-nothingness without reasonable cause, which clings to us for weeks and months after we have recovered from the acute attack.

Partly, and more apprehensively, we dread its "running into" pneumonia or being followed during convalescence by an attack of this or some other severe lung trouble. While this latter danger is a real one, it is very easy to exaggerate it.

In the current phrase of the day, pneumonia "means nothing in our young life," but means a great deal in our old and middle-aged life. Pneumonia is one of the greatest and most potent shufflers-off of this mortal coil for those who have passed three-score years and ten.

It is the real shears of Atropos that cut the thread of falling life. It well-nigh attains the dignity of one of the great processes of nature, and like most of these, is so awful, so painless, so mercifully shrouded in the Nirvana of unconsciousness and non-recognition, that most deaths caused by it in the aged are put down to old age—sheer inability to live any longer.

In fact we now know that two-thirds of the deaths called "old age" in the death certificates are really due to pneumonia of the aged.

There is no cough, no pain, little or no fever—just a gentle, progressive collapse of all the vital forces, and so mercifully swift that all is usually over within two or three days. Indeed, the disease is often not recognized as pneumonia at all, unless the back of the chest has been very carefully gone over with the stethoscope, as a matter of routine, or for some reason a post-mortem is held.

Pneumonia has been termed by a great physician-philosopher "the friend of the aged," so peacefully and unrecognized does it waft them across the bar and give them their honorable discharge from the battle of life.

Applying this to the high death rate of one week in New York, for instance, we find at once exactly what we should have expected, viz., that of one thousand seven hundred odd deaths during the week, nearly four hundred and fifty were persons sixty-five years of age and over. In other words, the increase of the death rate among the old was more than double that in the other ages of life, and a very considerable share of the one hundred and thirty-five "extra" deaths from pneumonia during the week occurred among persons over sixty.

In fact oddly enough there were exactly one hundred and twenty-six more deaths among people over sixty-five in that week than in the corresponding week of last year, although, of course, many of these extra deaths in the elderly were due to other causes than pneumonia. The moral of all of which is, that if you are under sixty and in fairly good condition, and behaving yourself—"having conduct," as the Irish say—you need not be very vividly alarmed over the risks of dying from pneumonia after the grip.

In-Shoots

It is better to beat it when the devil comes in the guise of a handsome woman.

In addition to his other discomforts, every girl thinks that the wall-eyed man wants to flirt with her.

Without the privates and messenger boys the captains of industry could not win many laurels.

The fellow who, during courtship, said that he would die for her often makes good by eating her cooking after marriage.

A little peroxide now and then will often trip the wisest men.

The Dishonesty of Extravagance

Those Who Buy What They Cannot Pay for, and Are Not Likely Ever to Be Able to Pay, in Order to Make a Show, Are as Dishonest as If They Actually Committed Theft

By Dorothy Dix

THERE are two kinds of thievery. One is the open and above board dishonesty of the robber, and the other is the dishonesty of the dead beat. And of the two the dishonesty of the dead beat is the more contemptible.

The porch climber and the burglar risk their liberty and their necks in their profession, also they are avowed enemies to society and give you a chance to protect yourself against their depredations. And they do not prey upon their friends.

The dead beat, on the other hand, is a sneakthief who trades on the fact that his thievery is so smoothly done that he cannot be punished for it, and that he keeps always within the law. He is an inside worker against whom you cannot defend yourself, and his victims are his friends and his family and acquaintances, those who trust him.

The dead beat does not use a jimmy and a dark lantern when he starts out to rob. Nor does he put a pistol to the head of the individual he proposes holding up. His methods are much more subtle. He gets your money by borrowing and by means of bills that he makes without any means or the remotest intention of ever paying.

When it comes down to a matter of real honesty no man or woman convicted of thievery and serving their term in a penitentiary is one whit more guilty than those men and women who are always "touching" us for a little loan, or who buy things that they cannot afford and for which they never pay.

What is the difference between the "dip" who lifts a ten-dollar bill out of our pocket on a crowded car when we are not looking and the friend who rushes hurriedly in and says, "Old man, won't you let me have five or ten dollars until pay day?" well knowing that there will never be any pay day for you?

What is the difference between the shoplifter who sneaks a lace scarf or a pair of gloves off of a counter and the woman who buys the lace scarf and the gloves, knowing that the merchant will never get his money for them?

Yet there are thousands of supposedly reputable people who live by their wits that way and who would be furiously angry if anybody told them the truth and that their photographs and finger prints ought to be adorning the Rogues' Gallery.

To many of us it is a perpetual wonder how certain people can live in the style they do. We know the man makes a moderate salary, yet he and his wife live as if they were rich. The answer to the puzzle is that they are practicing thievery as a side line. The difference between their income and their expenditure they pilfer from the various merchants with whom they deal.

The woman has stolen her clothes from dressmakers and milliners. The man has robbed the tailor of his, and they've held up the butcher and grocer for their food. It's not a pretty thought, is it? And to one with old-fashioned ideals of honor and honesty it seems a pity that they cannot be made to pay the penalty of their crimes.

Certainly there is no dishonesty that has so little excuse as the dishonesty of extravagance, and there is none so common.

Woman

By Jane McLean

A WOMAN'S heritage, Fate had decreed
To be the saddest in the world of men;
Hers is the greatest ever present need,
Her battles must be fought time and again.

She wears a mask, a flaunting rosy wreath,
Upon the tawny mystery of her hair,
And while Despair is lurking underneath.
Her lips must smile that man may call her fair.

Her eyes must ever beckon and allure,
And tears may rise no further than her heart;
It is a woman's duty to endure,
To weep in silence and to walk apart.

Railroads and Employes Should Reach Agreement by Mutual Fair Play

monthly, and the men want to get for themselves as much of this money as they possibly can, and the railroad managers want to get as much of it as they possibly can for interest, dividends and surplus.

Either the men or the railroads would take the whole revenue if either knew any way it could be done. But it happens that the roads can't run unless the men work, and the men can't work unless the roads are running, and both know well enough that neither can take the other's fair share of the joint earnings without smashing the whole combination.

And, besides, the nation, which is a much bigger and more powerful concern than either the railroad directorates or the employes' organizations, has a bigger stake in the game than either or both of them, and will not submit to being ruined by the selfishness of either or both.

The American people desire the railroad men to have a reasonably short work-day, and they, at the same time, realize that the railroads must earn reasonable returns upon their business.

And the people will be very impatient of any stubbornness on either side which threatens to lead to national injury and is not settled, when it can be settled, by mutual concessions and mutual fair play.

We wish that both the railroad managers and the railroad employes would get this truth firmly fixed in their minds before proceeding to final action.

Because neither of them can make any headway against the united will and force of the whole American people, and in this momentous and far-ramifying dispute the whole American people are bent upon a peaceful settlement, and will look with strong disfavor upon either party to the dispute which refuses to come to fair terms of agreement.
